CAIRO, ILL IN PATH OF THE RAGING OHIO

Appeals Sent to President Wilson Asking for Assistance; Governor Dunne Rushes Troops to Doomed City to Prevent the Probable Catastrophe

CAIRO, Ill., March 31. (Monday) All the levees about Cairo are holding at 2 o'clock this morning, and those directing the fight against the flood express themselves as confident that a stage of at least 57 feet on the Cairo gauge can be successfully combated. The gauge now shows a stage of 51.5, a rise of two-tenths of a foot since 7 o'clock last night.

CAIRO, Ill., March 30. The Cairo executive flood committee late tonight sent an appeal to President Wilson asking for aid for Cairo and towns nearby. The message, in substance, is as follows:

"The worst flood ever known in the Ohio valley and the Mississippi is now expected. All previous high water records from Cairo south may be broken in a few days. We are making every effort in our power to take care of the local situation, but the river communities near us should have assistance. May we not have the help of your great office for this district?"

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 30.—Just before midnight, Governor Dunne received a message from Cairo that the water was within one foot of the top of the levee which protects the city, and that the river was still rising.

Bernard Lamb of Junction, Gallatin county, has wired for 100 tents for refugees. E. C. Fletcher of Mounds has wired for 50 tents for homeless people there.

Communication Cut Off.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 30.—At midnight, Governor Dunne received word that telephonic communication with Cairo had been cut off. The governor fears that the breaking of communication means the levee has collapsed.

The governor personally is directing the mobilization of troops and the rushing of supplies.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 30.—Illinois threatens to become the center of flood distress. Startling messages were received tonight by Governor Dunne and Adjutant General Dickson, indicating that Shawneetown and Cairo are in imminent danger of being inundated. Other towns are in distress.

The entire Seventh regiment, Illinois National Guard, under command of Col. Daniel Moriarty of Chicago, was ordered out by Governor Dunne.

The governor already had ordered five down-state companies to Cairo.

Fail to Heed Warnings.

In talking over the telephone with Governor Dunne, Mayor Parsons of Cairo stated that, despite flood warnings, advising residents to move to higher ground, the number of those who have taken this advice has been offset several times over by thousands of refugees from all along the river, who have been rushing into Cairo.

Adjutant General Dickson and Col. S. O. Tripp will leave early tomorrow for Cairo to take charge of the troops there. In a message received tonight it was stated that conditions at Shawneetown are alarming, and that a break of the levee is feared at any time.

Many of the residents have moved to the hills back of the town, but a break in the levee would cause great loss of life and property.

Ten thousand army rations were sent to Cairo by express tonight and will reach there some time tomorrow.

Many Fleeing City.

CAIRO, Ill., March 30.—Trainloads of persons left Cairo today, following receipt of news that the Ohio river was expected to reach a higher stage than in the disastrous flood of last spring. R. T. Lindley, the local weather forecaster, issued a statement saying:

"As a prudential measure, it is advisable that women, children and the infirm seek more secure refuge."

The Ohio tonight reached 51.3 feet. An appeal was sent today to Governor Dunne for help, and he responded that he would send 1,000 laborers, 2,500 national guardsmen, 10,000 rations and 200,000 sacks for sand.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 31.—(Monday)—At 12:15 o'clock this morning the Cairo office of the Postal Telegraph company reported the levees about that city still intact.

PERU, Ind., March 30.—While no additional reports of deaths were received here today, the general relief committee, headed by Mayor John Kruetzer, inspected the flood district and found conditions much worse than had been expected.

The known dead at Peru number eight.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., March 30.—The crest of the Ohio river flood is expected to reach Louisville Tuesday afternoon or night, with a stage of about 45 feet.

From western Kentucky points reports came that the river was rising

McKesson Talks This Evening in Temple Theater

Questions of special interest to voters and taxpayers will be discussed tonight in Temple theater by City Attorney Charles L. McKesson, candidate for mayor. He will take up in detail the various bond matters that will come up at the election tomorrow, and also will consider various phases of the campaign.

All candidates for commissioner will be provided with seats on the platform, and will be given the opportunity to speak if they desire. Those who do not care to speak will be introduced to the audience.

The following candidates for commissioner already have consented to make short addresses at the meeting: E. E. Baty, Mrs. Jenny Shelley Boyd, W. T. Christopher, L. M. Counts, James J. Eubank, Dr. B. B. Grover, Harry Hutchinson, D. G. Johnson, William T. Kasson and Edgar Lee Ralston. Some of the other candidates probably will speak, but word of their acceptance had not been received last night.

HELP THE SUFFERERS!

Colorado Springs must and will do its part in providing speedy relief for the victims of the flood in Ohio and other middle western states.

The Chamber of Commerce has assumed charge of a fund for this purpose, and will promptly forward the money to Governor Cox of Ohio and other authorized persons. Subscriptions will be received at the offices of The Gazette and the Evening Telegraph, and at the banks.

MONTENEGRO KEEPS UP BOMBARDMENT

Ceaseless Fire on Scutari Arouses Indignation of Other Nations

LONDON, March 31.—The stubbornness of Montenegro in continuing the bombardment of Scutari contrary to the wishes of the powers and the dilatoriness of Servia in withdrawing her troops beyond the frontier of the future Albania, if not overcome by more peaceful measures, will lead to a demonstration and blockade of the Montenegrin coast and the ports of Albania occupied by Servia.

Austria-Hungary is losing patience with her little neighbors and is urging the powers to take action to enforce their demands.

Servia has expressed her intention of complying with the powers' demands to evacuate Albania, but has made no movement in that direction. Austria insists upon the immediate removal of the Servians from the country.

Bulgars Left 1,000 Dead.

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 30.—The Bulgarians left 1,000 dead on the field after the engagement yesterday west of Biyuk Chekmedye, according to an official report. The Turks also found 400 rifles and large quantities of entrenching tools. Since this engagement all has been quiet along the Tchatalja lines as well as at Bulair.

The Turks believe the Bulgarian offensive action at Tchatalja was intended to prevent any Turkish demonstration during the attack on Adrian-

DAYTON FACES GIGANTIC PROBLEM

Thousands of Homeless Must Be Cared for Following Flood

MARTIAL LAW IS EXTENDED

Much Apprehension Is Felt Over Sanitary Conditions of the City

DAYTON, O., March 30.—Here is the problem presented to Dayton tonight, as summarized by George F. Baiba, secretary to Governor Cox, and representing the latter here:

Forty thousand persons must be fed, clothed and housed for a week or more.

Twenty thousand persons must be cared for indefinitely. These are persons who lost all when their household goods were swept away. They must be provided with a few necessary household articles, such as bedding, pots and pans, stoves and a few dollars. A half million dollars could be used in this way by the relief committee.

Fifteen thousand houses and business buildings must be rehabilitated.

Two thousand houses and other structures, of what remains of them, must be pulled down.

Thousands of tons of debris must be removed.

Much Already Accomplished.

Following are some of the things accomplished since the flood broke over the city Tuesday morning:

The waterworks pumping station is in operation, but the distribution of water is greatly retarded by open pipes in wrecked houses. The pressure is feeble, but growing stronger as leaks are checked.

The main sanitary sewer is in operation, although many of the laterals leading from houses are clogged with mud or backed up water.

The flood sewers, separate of the sanitary sewer, will be in operation tomorrow. These sewers are needed now to remove the water being pumped from basements.

Telegraph service is catching up with requirements.

No braver services have been performed than those by the telegraph and telephone linemen. They waded

GIRL IS HURLED FROM MOTORBIKE

STRIKES TRAIN AND IS BADLY INJURED

Accident Happens When Her Companion Loses Control of Machine

Miss Pearl Randall, aged 16 years, of 105 South Nevada avenue, was seriously injured, and Charles Cage, who lives at the same address, was slightly cut and bruised at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon when the motorcycle which they were riding south on Nevada avenue collided with a westbound freight train of the railroad tracks on Moreno avenue.

Miss Randall sustained concussion of the brain, but her physician, Dr. G. W. Spicer, believes that her skull is not fractured. She is at St. Francis hospital, where she was taken immediately after the accident. The girl was still unconscious at a late hour last night, but Dr. Spicer, although he is unable to say what the outcome will be, regards her chances of recovery as favorable.

Cage, according to the police, has no rider's license, and will be taken into police court this morning to answer to a charge of driving a motorcycle without one.

Miss Randall was riding in front of Cage, on the tank of the motorcycle. Cage saw the train when he was nearly a block away from it, according to the story he told Sergeant Henderson at the police station after the accident. The machine was, it is said, going rather slowly, and as they neared the train Cage attempted to shut off the power. He became confused, however, for he turned the power on instead of off and sent the machine full speed ahead toward the train.

Cage swung the machine to the east in an attempt to avoid the accident, but the motorcycle crashed into one of

Sarah Bernhardt and John Drew Boost Relief Fund for Flood Victims

DENVER, March 30.—A flood sufferers' benefit performance, given by theatrical companies, together with Sarah Bernhardt and John Drew as the leading attractions, tonight added $5,000 to Colorado's contribution to the Ohio and Indiana relief funds.

The sale of seats [illegible] $4,500 and $500 was paid for flowers and programs. The grand total of Colorado's contributions in hand and subscribed tonight is more than $35,000.

PEOPLE HUDDLED TOGETHER LIKE SHEEP; PESTILENCE WILL FOLLOW

Ohio River Cities Preparing for Worst Flood in Their History; Conditions in State of Ohio Improved

INDIANAPOLIS, March 30.—Central Indiana is summoning its medical forces to fight disease which is following in the wake of the flood which swept that section last week. Sanitary experts expect hundreds of cases of typhoid, diphtheria, pneumonia and measles to develop. Scores of persons of all walks of life have been huddled for days in small halls and buildings. They have been forced to live like sheep and a pestilence is feared.

Thousands of persons will continue to be homeless until their residences have been cleaned of the filth left by the receding waters and fumigated.

The cities along the Ohio river are preparing for the worst flood of their existence. Already thousands of persons have been driven from the bottom lands and the property damage runs into the millions. The water still is rising and the crest of the flood is four days away. Railroad communities with these cities has been cut off from the north.

Lawrenceburg, where the levee broke on Saturday, is under seven feet of water. Water covers the first floors of the high school and court house where 400 persons are marooned.

Guards Drive Out People.

The whistle at the Lawrenceburg roller mills warned the residents of the town that the levee had broken. In a few minutes a wall of water 30 feet high swept through the town. Sixty houses near the break were crushed and carried away. That no lives were lost seems a miracle. National guardsmen under command of Major Gilmer are in charge of the relief work at Logansport, and have driven residents from their water-soaked homes.

They will not be permitted to return until the houses have been made sanitary.

There are 3,800 homeless at Logansport, and the military medical corps say that the danger of a pestilence is greater than at any other point in the state.

Of the 42 persons reported missing this morning, 21 had been reported safe tonight.

In response to an appeal from Mayor McDowell of Vincennes, Governor Ralston ordered 200 tents and supplies sent to that city.

James J. Hill wired today a $5,000 contribution to the relief fund.

Conditions in Ohio Improved.

COLUMBUS, O., March 30.—With previous reports being minimized substantially while the work of clearing up the debris has been begun in earnest, the Ohio flood situation took on a more cheerful aspect today as viewed by Governor Cox and other state officials. In many sections of the state visited by high waters, reconstruction already has commenced.

Governor Cox stated today that the situation in this state is well in hand.

Gen. John C. Speaks, in charge of the Ohio National guard, received an official message from Portsmouth today stating that the flood had not broken out in that city and that but one life had been lost.

Following the precedent set by President Roosevelt during the San Francisco earthquake, Governor Cox announced today that no contribution for Ohio flood sufferers would be accepted from foreign countries, except from Americans who may happen to be temporarily abroad.

PROGRESSIVES OF HOUSE WILL ORGANIZE APRIL 4

WASHINGTON, March 30.—The Progressives of the house are preparing to organize on April 4 to carry on a Progressive program in the Sixty-third congress. Representative Hinebaugh of Illinois, in charge of the organization details, and Representative Murdock of Kansas, greeted as the third party candidate for the speakership, figure on approximately 18 representatives as the Progressive strength at the outset.

Mr. Murdock said today that bills to be introduced would cover every plank in the Progressive platform.

TARIFF BILL IS NOW UP TO WILSON

Question of Number of Measures Puzzling the Democratic Leaders

FACES SENATE OPPOSITION

"Smoothing Out" Process Now in Progress for Extra Session

WASHINGTON, March 30.—The "smoothing out" process to be initiated this week in preparation for the handling of tariff revision in the extra session of congress that opens April 7 is regarded by congressional leaders as the most important step in the program of tariff preliminaries.

Senator Simmons, chairman of the senate finance committee, will confer shortly with Chairman Underwood of the house ways and means committee, and both will talk with President Wilson and arrange for further conferences. While the tariff bill practically is complete, important developments hang upon the decisions of President Wilson and upon the result of a full canvass of the Democrats of the senate.

To President Wilson will be left the final decision as to whether there shall be one general revision bill or separate measures for each of the different schedules of the tariff law. A majority of the house tariff makers favor the single bill idea, and if President Wilson supports the plan a single bill will be offered to the house.

Sharp Opposition in Senate.

This plan has already aroused sharp opposition in the senate, however. The free sugar and 15 per cent duty on raw wool, provided for in the bill by the house committee, will be the target for attack in the senate, not only from Republicans but from Democrats who come from wool or sugar states.

Should a single general tariff bill be introduced with the approval of President Wilson, it is believed the senate Democratic leaders would be forced to yield to the demand for separate votes on these two schedules. In such event, they might be taken out of the general tariff bill and passed as amendments.

The extent to which President Wilson may desire a reduction of duties on agricultural products, comprised in the so-called "market basket" list, will have a marked influence upon the support that may be given the new tariff revision by progressive Republicans. The tariff on wheat, barley, oats and other farm products, practically has been cut in half by the house committee.

Would Welcome Slight Shift.

If this rate of duty is approved by President Wilson, it is believed a large body of the progressive Republicans of the house will vote for the Democratic bill unless other reductions are so extreme as to make them change their plans. The Democratic bill will not need the additional Progressive or Republican support in the house, where

HUERTA AND DIAZ HAVE FALLEN OUT?

Mexican Government Calls on U. S. to Prohibit Importation of Arms

MEXICO CITY, March 30.—The Mexican government has made a formal protest to the American government against the shipping of arms and ammunition from the United States to the rebels, and has requested that greater vigilance be exercised in guarding the frontier. Mexican officials understand that numerous consignments of war materials, including many machine guns, have been sent across the border, in some cases even at the regular ports of entry, and now are in the hands of the rebels.

It is pointed out by the same officials that since the rebels control a large part of the frontier, this country is dependent absolutely on the United States to prevent the rebels from obtaining supplies.

No notable improvement in the revolutionary situation is apparent. The greater successes in recent days are credited to the rebels, although severe punishment in minor engagements has been inflicted on the adherents of Venustiano Carranza, near Monterey. The report that Carranza and his chief lieutenant, Major Cafias, have been captured, has not been confirmed.

Forces Not Well Organized.

The followers of Carranza apparently are not so well organized as those of Maytorena, in Sonora, but numerous bands are harassing a wide area throughout Coahuila and Nuevo Leon. The new organization of rebels in Durango and San Luis Potosi is greatly hampering the federals.

The government seems to regard the situation in the northwest as more delicate than that in Coahuila. Gen. Jose

J. P. MORGAN IS CRITICALLY ILL

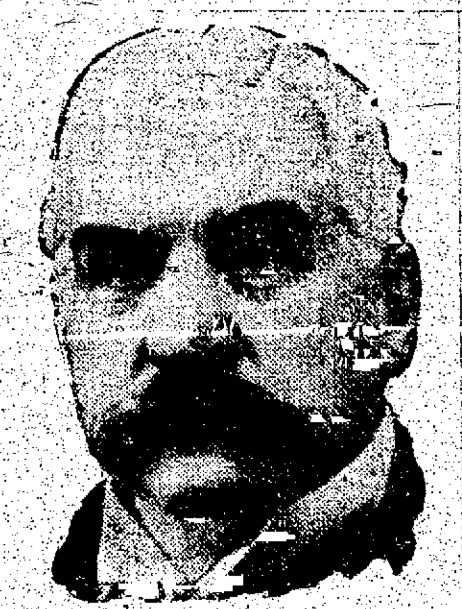

PHYSICIANS SAY END IS NEAR

Unable to Take Nourishment and Sudden Change for Worse Sets In ROME, March 30.—J. Pierpont Morgan is in a most critical condition. This was the official announcement made today by the attending physicians. He has been unable to take any nourishment for several days, and his weakness has given rise to the gravest apprehension.

Up to Saturday night, Mr. Morgan's son-in-law, Herbert L. Satterlee, and the physicians made every effort to conceal Mr. Morgan's true condition. The bulletin issued tonight, however, indicates that the worst is to be feared unless a reaction speedily sets in.

Dr. M. Allen Starr of New York, a noted nerve specialist, was summoned from Naples. Dr. Starr already had made an examination of Mr. Morgan.

J. PIERPONT MORGAN.

He reached here last night and revisited Mr. Morgan three times since then. Prof. Giuseppe Bastianelli and Dr. George A. Dixon also were in attendance. The physicians, who are in complete accord on the diagnosis, issued the following bulletin:

Refuses Nourishment.

"A week ago Mr. Morgan was persuaded to go to bed and remain there to conserve his strength. Until Wednesday afternoon he slept and slept very well without the aid of drugs, but took a satisfactory amount of nourishment.

"Wednesday afternoon he began to refuse food, and since then it has been impossible to nourish him. He has lost weight and strength very rapidly. His nervous system is showing this, and it has added to the strain seriously.

"Mr. Morgan has not developed any organic trouble, but is so exceedingly weak that his present condition must be considered critical.

(Signed) "G. BASTIANELLI.
"M. ALLEN STARR.
"G. A. DIXON."

Doctor Startled by Change.

The only nourishment which the patient has been able to receive for several days has been through injections.

Dr. Starr was startled at the change in Mr. Morgan's appearance since he saw him a short time ago at Naples, and was much concerned again today over the change which took place last night.

There are four trained nurses from the Anglo-American Nursing home in attendance. Mr. Morgan's pulse gradually is becoming weaker. The insomnia, from which he suffers, is being combated by drugs, but the narcotics are having a pronounced effect on his heart.

The most distressing symptoms for those surrounding him is the patient's complete silence. For this reason, it has been impossible to say whether he now realizes his condition.

The last words uttered by Mr. Morgan were a request to have his limbs massaged.

Functional Vitality Low.

All attempts to make the patient swallow anything, even water, have been in vain. The physicians explain that this is due to the lack of functional vitality in the nerve centers, which, under such conditions, arrest the functioning of the organs. They are opposed to the desire of Mr. and Mrs. Satterlee to remove Mr. Morgan to London, considering that any exposure at present would be extremely dangerous.

Only tonight did the gravity of Mr. Morgan's condition become generally known in Rome, and anxious inquiries concerning him have been pouring in. Even King Victor Emmanuel, who always has remembered Mr. Morgan's generosity in returning to Italy the famous Ascoli cope when he learned that it had been stolen, has privately inquired concerning the financier's progress, although his majesty at present is away from home.

Late tonight Mr. Morgan was resting relatively quietly. It was said he had slept a little.

Mr. Satterlee still gave it as his belief that, owing to the robustness of Mr. Morgan's constitution, he was not in immediate danger.

LEADVILLE PIONEER WOMAN DIES IN DENVER

DENVER, March 30.—Mrs. Cornelia Flintham, 77 years old, widow of John W. Flintham, and one of Leadville's pioneer women, died at the home of her son, John W. Flintham, here today, of paralysis.

1,500 JOIN IN STRENUOUS PROTEST

Proposed Liquor and Sunday Amusement Ordinances Are Attacked by Speakers

C. P. DODGE IS CHAIRMAN

Dr. M. N. Smith, Atty. J. L. Bennett, David Elliot, Talk; Relief Fund Raised

"Are the people of Colorado Springs going to allow conditions to exist by law for the so-called benefit of a few people who visit here from a few days to a week, that will be obnoxious to the city [illegible] here all the year round?"

"Those fostering the Sunday amusement ordinance are not so solicitious about the rights of the poor workingman as they are for the workingman's money."

Fifteen hundred people who packed Temple theater last night in the protest meeting against the restaurant liquor ordinance and the Sunday amusement ordinance, heard these two proposals, that will come before the [illegible], strike crushing blows by the speakers who attacked the questions from the viewpoints of the professional man, the business man and the minister. Most of the churches closed last night, so that the congregations might attend the gathering, and men and women from all walks of life were present.

Although additional seating room had been provided for the meeting, a number were unable to secure seats, and galleries, the main floor, and even the stage, were filled with interested citizens who came to protest.

Relief Fund Raised.

As a result of a special plea made by the Rev. S. E. Brewster of the First Christian church, for contributions for the flood sufferers, $167.16 was collected in cash and $37 was pledged. The following resolution was adopted by the meeting:

"Be it resolved, that we, the citizens of Colorado Springs, in mass meeting assembled, do hereby express to the people of the stricken area our heartfelt sympathy in this their hour of suffering [illegible] and that we earnestly trust that in this expression of our sympathy and in sending financial aid some of the suffering and distress may be alleviated; and be it further resolved, that a copy of this resolution be sent to the proper authorities of the stricken area and that copies also be sent to the newspapers of this city for publication."

Attorney J. L. Bennett spoke from the viewpoint of the professional man and especially the legal status of the two proposed ordinances. Referring to the liquor ordinance, he said:

"There is nothing in this measure that can possibly appeal to the prohibitionists or the man who believes in regulation. It is an out and out wide open ordinance. This ordinance, while not allowing the proprietor of a restaurant to sell liquor, allows him to get it for his customers and allows them to bring it in on the pretext of a meal. It permits him to send out up until midnight and get a supply large enough to last until morning for his guests. There is not a word that prohibits drinking after midnight. The only authority the city will have over such a restaurant will be to declare it a disorderly house, by a jury. The keepers of such places cannot be held liable for the actions of their guests, because they do not sell the liquor."

"Vaudeville Plus."

Attorney Bennett attacked the Sunday amusement ordinance from the standpoint of "vaudeville plus." The ordinance provides for lectures, moving pictures, refined vaudeville and standard plays. He declared: "We are not voting on whether we believe in Sunday amusements, but we are voting on this refined vaudeville and standard plays. Who will decide whether the vaudeville is refined or the plays are standard? The city council cannot change an ordinance passed by the people. It is a question whether the council could appoint a board of censors who would decide what is proper. We might try it by

RAINS AND WARM WEATHER WILL PREVAIL THIS WEEK

WASHINGTON, March 30.—Temperatures above the seasonal average over most of the country with precipitation generally below normal in the north and near normal in the south, probably will prevail the coming week, according to the weather bureau's weekly bulletin.

"No pronounced cold waves will cross the country this week," the bulletin predicts. "Frequent rains are probable on the Pacific coast as far south as northern California. A disturbance central Sunday morning in the northwest will move eastward along the northern border and cause unsettled weather and local rains at the beginning of the week in the region east of the Mississippi river.

"Another disturbance will appear in the far west Tuesday and cross the middle west Wednesday."

the cars. Miss Randall was hurled forward, her head struck the side of the car, and then she bounced back, falling with her feet towards the train and so close to the tracks that the wheels of the cars tore off the heels of her shoes. Miss Randall's body acted as a buffer for Cage, and he was practically unhurt. Both handle bars of the motorcycle, which bore the brunt of the collision with the car, were broken off.

The train, which consisted of some freight cars which a Santa Fe switching crew was taking from the Santa Fe station to the Denver & Rio Grande yards, was moving slowly, and was stopped within a few seconds after the accident.

Miss Randall has been working at the Colorado Springs laundry, and boards with her mother and sister at 105 South Nevada avenue. Cage works for the Wardell & Lowe Transfer and Storage company and also boards at 105 South Nevada avenue.

The problem of how to secure employment for the unemployed laborers in our city will be discussed tonight at Temple theater by Judge McKesson.

HUERTA AND DIAZ

Mier is en route to take command of the campaign in that territory. The slow mobilization of forces along the Chihuahua-Sonora border continues. Troops there are to be supplemented by forces sent in transports to Guaymas and Mazatlan. The government asserts that it soon will have 10,000 men in that region, including many of Orozco's army.

Thus far very few former rebels have actually engaged in the campaign.

Huerta and Diaz Disagree.

Residents of the capital are nervous because of the continued rumors of friction between Huerta and Gen. Felix Diaz, and of plots and intrigues, even to the fixing of dates when a new battle may be expected in the streets, or the assassination of one or the other of the principals. On Saturday, as keep was the excitement that the president summoned newspaper men to the palace after midnight to issue a formal statement in which he said he and Felix Diaz still were friends and working in harmony, and that there was no truth in the street gossip.

Huerta's statement was reiterated by Diaz.

Gen. Geronimo Treviho, who recently resigned as governor of Nuevo Leon because of his alleged lack of sympathy with the Huerta regime, was a visitor at the capital today. He was shown all honors, being greeted by officials and escorted by troops. He was received in audience by the president, but no statement was made as to the object of his visit here.

rapidly inundating lowlands, driving their occupants to higher ground and interrupting railroad service.

The tracks of the Louisville, Henderson and St. Louis railroad are under water at Flowersville and Griffith, eight miles west of Owensboro.

Henderson, Ky., practically is isolated by the suspension of all railroad service. Damage to the lowlands in that section, according to reports, will mount into the thousands.

The railroad situation in Louisville tonight became acute. The Louisville, Henderson & St. Louis suspended traffic entirely. The Louisville & Nashville from Cincinnati could reach the city only by detouring through Jeffersonville, Ind.

The Louisville, Indianapolis & Chicago succeeded in establishing service only as far as West Baden.

OMAHA SIGHTSEERS "TAGGED" FOR NEEDY

100,000 Out-of-Town Visitors View Devastated Districts of the City

OMAHA, March 30.—Omaha was the mecca for about 100,000 sightseers who came in from the surrounding country today to view the district devastated by last Sunday night's tornado. All railroads entering the city ran special trains with excursion rates for the benefit of the visitors. Brown clad militiamen were on guard at all intersections of the tornado zone, keeping the crowds constantly on the move. Rehabilitation and relief work was kept up all day.

The women of the city held a "tag day," and in this manner swelled the relief fund. The tags, according to reports, brought from 10 cents to $5 each and gave the visitors an opportunity to help the sufferers of the storm.

One of the novel sights to arrest the attention of the outsiders was the services in the Trinity Methodist church at Twenty-first and Binney. This church had a whole side torn off by the twister, but the enterprising parishioners patched it up with tarpaulins and castoff boards.

All appeals for help have been promptly met by the relief committee. They hope to raise a sufficient fund to give all in need a new grip on life. Work goes on slowly in the storm-swept area, and it will be some time before it assumes a normal appearance.

TARIFF BILL

the Democratic majority is large, but Democratic leaders would welcome the aid of one or two Republican votes in the senate to strengthen their narrow majority which may be disturbed by a bitter fight on free sugar or upon the wool duty.

President Wilson's tariff message, the substance of which has been communicated to leaders of both houses of congress, is understood to have received general approval.

In the ten days that precede the opening of the special session it is planned to reach a general basis of agreement that will insure speedy action and a few changes in the tariff bills.

Features of Proposed Scheme.

The income tax plan, as framed, is expected by the Democratic leaders of the house to run the gauntlet of both houses successfully. The scheme embodies these features:

Exemptions—All income under $4,000; incomes of eleemosynary institutions, etc.

Rates—Minimum one per cent on $4,000; graduated up to a maximum of 4 per cent on $100,000 or more.

Method—Enforcement of the "collection at the source" principle so as to obviate personal assessments as much as possible, collection through corporations or other employers instead of directly from the employes whenever practicable.

The rates and exceptions still are subject to change, though the figures given are expected to stand. The income tax feature was written in its essentials by Representative Hill of Tennessee.

It is destined to bring into the treasury not far from $100,000,000, including the present corporation tax of about $30,000,000.

DAYTON FACES

and swam low floods and entered tottering buildings unhesitatingly in the course of duty. John H. Patterson, chairman of the general committee, found many operators last night who had not removed shoes or clothing since last Tuesday.

Martial Law Extended.

By order of Governor Cox the reign of martial law over Dayton was extended to take in the whole county today to prevent the sale of liquor in the suburbs. The flood swept away the city administration, temporarily at least, and brought in what amounts to a commission form of government.

Immediately martial law was proclaimed, the municipal administration was eclipsed. Adjutant General Wood became supreme under the governor.

On the heels of this Mr. Patterson was appointed chairman of a committee of five to administer the affairs of the city.

The militia was instructed to obey his orders and thus became a police force.

Sightseers in motor cars felt the heavy hand of public necessity when General Wood ordered them from their cars and pressed the latter into public service. Those who protested were forced to surrender their cars at the points of rifles until released by order of Chairman John H. Patterson.

Coroner J. W. McKemy estimated that 100 bodies have been recovered, though there are records of only 72. He said many had been buried without usual official action and that in many cases he did not expect to get records.

Only a Few Unidentified.

Hundreds of persons still looking for relatives passed along the lines at the morgues. Only a few bodies have not been identified.

Eight persons suffering from diphtheria are at the Miami Valley hospital. Seven of them were caught in a house with a person who had recently become ill with the disease. Four persons hemmed in with one who had measles are suffering with that disease.

Eight persons whose minds have temporarily become affected, because of hardships suffered in the flood, are being cared for at the state insane asylum.

With warmer weather the greatest problem was the removal of the carcasses of dead horses. Every available automobile truck and all the horse-drawn drays were impressed by the sanitary officials, and hundreds of men were engaged all day removing the carcasses to the different incinerating plants and to vacant plots on the outskirts of the city, where they are burned.

Large Forces at Work.

Merchants and those of their employes who could be found, were clearing the piles of wrecked stocks of merchandise with shovels, throwing the mud in some places several feet deep, into the streets.

In Riverdale and North Dayton, where the flood waters attained the greatest depth, several thousand persons waded knee deep in slimy mud, rummaging their desolated homes for clothing.

It will be a long time before all Daytonians again live in their own homes. There are 15,000 residences which must be plastered and papered before they can be occupied. There are 4,500 houses which must have new foundations or new roofs, doors, windows and chimneys before their owners can move again. There are 2,000 houses which it will be necessary to raze. Engineers advise that this reconstruction work will require four months.

So far as the business and industrial buildings are concerned, it has been estimated by architects that it will require eight months before the repair work and rebuilding can be completed. Thousands of men will be employed and work will be pushed to the utmost. Large quantities of material have been ordered by telegraph to be shipped immediately.

The city still is without anything like an adequate water supply, and the danger of a conflagration still is the subject of grave concern.

Announcement was made that the principal needs of the people are drinking water, shoes, clothing, picks and shovels. Money also is wanted. Although a considerable amount subscribed by cities throughout the country now is available.

Ernest P. Bicknell, national director of the American Red Cross, who arrived to confer with the local relief committee, said that a total of $800,000 was available for flood sufferers generally.

TRAIN GOES INTO RIVER

FONDA, N. Y., March 30.—New York Central train No. 55, the Buffalo Special, from Buffalo to New York, jumped the track at Yosts, near here, at 2:40 o'clock this morning. Three sleepers, a buffet car and express car and the day coach went into the Mohawk river and were partially submerged, but all passengers escaped. Seven persons were slightly hurt. The accident was due to the weakening of the track by floods.

PRISONERS SYMPATHIZE WITH FLOOD SUFFERERS

SACRAMENTO, Cal., March 30.—Resolutions expressing sympathy with the flood sufferers were adopted today by the prisoners at Folsom penitentiary. E. C. McCarty, convicted of forgery, drew up the resolutions. Other convicts requested that they be published "to show the outside world that the prisoners are not heartless or heedless of the suffering of others."

KING CONSTANTINE TO GO TO SALONIKI

ATHENS, March 30.—Immediately after the funeral of the late King George, which takes place Wednesday, King Constantine will go to Saloniki and remain there until peace has been declared. As in the case of King George, King Constantine's presence may be taken as a notification to Bulgaria that Greece intends to hold Saloniki as part of her spoils of war.

GOV. GONZALEZ KILLED BY TRAIN ON WHICH HE WAS TAKEN AS PRISONER

EL PASO, Tex., March 30.—Governor Gonzales was killed by the wheels of the train bearing him, a prisoner, to Mexico City, according to an investigation based on the testimony of the train crew witnessing the affair. His hands tied behind his back, the Chihuahua governor fell between two cars while being transported from one coach to another. The army officers declared that the prisoner slipped and fell. The train was stopped and the body found, almost cut in twain. A bullet from an army officer's pistol ended the governor's sufferings.

Gonzales, one of the most prominent Madero followers, was arrested shortly after the Mexico City revolt, when his state was placed under martial law.

Demetrio Bustamente, internal revenue collector of Juarez, during last night came to El Paso with the funds of his office, which he turned over to the Constitutionalist "junta" here. He left a brief note addressed to "The Usurper Huerta," in which he explained that he had been appointed by Madero and that the funds of the office he believed belonged to the new revolutionists, who were upholders of the policies of the late president.

MONTENEGRO KEEPS UP

ople and that the Bulgars will not attempt to pierce the lines, which recently have been strengthened by the addition of heavy siege guns.

The fall of Adrianople has caused a feeling of deepest dejection in all sections, which has tended to increase the unpopularity of the government.

A message from the British vice consul at Adrianople states that all the consuls and foreign communities are safe and well. His report says that the Bulgarians took only 15,000 prisoners, the rest of the garrison being in hiding.

The porte has instructed the commander at Scutari to permit the departure of the civilian population. It is expected that the powers' note on the subject of mediation will be presented to the porte tomorrow.

Montenegro Active.

CETTINJE, March 30.—Since yesterday, the Montenegrin artillery on the main front before Scutari has been developing great activity. The Turkish positions on the plain before the town have been heavily bombarded, and the Turks have been driven from the entrenchments near the River Kir, by the persistent artillery fire.

Horrible Stories of Hardships.

BELGRADE, March 30.—The first trainload of wounded Servians arrived here today from Adrianople. Their story shows that the fighting which preceded the capture of Adrianople was the most terrible of the war. The Turks fought with the courage of desperation, but the perseverance of the Servians, and the excellent leadership of the commanders, resulted in their gaining the day. Some of the men were very severely wounded, but the majority are suffering only from slight bullet wounds.

The press unfavorably discusses Russia's action in joining the other powers in presenting a note to Servia and Montenegro with regard to Scutari and Albania. It was hoped until the last that Russia would withhold her support of the note.

One of the wounded officers said: "The siege was an unbroken chain of suffering for the besiegers, which reached its climax in the bitter cold of January and February. The snow lay six feet deep and sentries died at their posts. The skin of every soldier was parched by the intense frost, while in the trenches the men's feet were cut by the sharp ice breaking every morning under their steps. They slept in mud and water, covered only by canvas.

"On some days dozens of men were frozen to death. There were snow plains for 20 miles around; no wood could be found, and, even when it was brought, fires were forbidden, so as not to betray our positions."

GEORGE W. McCLUSKY

George W. McClusky, for many years called "Cheety George" by those who did not like the famous police inspector of New York, it has just been discovered left a fortune of more than three-quarters of a million. The lowest salary received by McClusky during his 30 years as a bluecoat was $800 a year and the highest $3,500.

The sources of McClusky's income above his salary are not known, but in the tenderloin there are very positive opinions about it. For a long time he was in charge of the tenderloin district, and then the gambling houses and similar institutions never closed.

McClusky during his lifetime occasionally dropped a hint about Wall street speculation. It is known that he had many wealthy men among his friends, and it is possible that some of them gave him tips on the market. Since the inspector divided his wealth among his three sisters before his death there was no will filed, and nothing definite could be learned about his fortune.

WEST VIRGINIA CITIES SWEPT BY THE FLOODS

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., March 30.—The crest of the Ohio river flood reached here late today, with a stage of 58.6 feet, six feet higher than the record of 1884. The river is receding slowly. Two companies of militia are guarding the town. Most of the residents of Belpre have sought safety here. Belleville, 18 miles away, is practically wiped out, and the people are escaping via the Virginia side. It is reported several lives have been lost at Belleville, but it is impossible to verify the reports tonight. A relief party started for Belleville late today.

Two lives were lost here. Fully 5,000 persons are homeless here and at Belpre and Belleville. It is said all the houses on Blennerhassett island have been swept away. The residents of the island were rescued in small boats.

Word received here from Marietta, O., today reported no lives lost there, but thousands are homeless. The entire business section of Marietta is inundated.

Huntington, W. Va., in Darkness.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., March 30.—(Via telephone to Pittsburg.)—This city is in total darkness tonight, is facing both a food and water famine, and 15,000 of the 40,000 inhabitants are homeless. Twelve persons are reported missing, and the property damage, according to close estimates, will amount to nearly $1,000,000.

This afternoon at 4 o'clock the river reached a stage of 56.2 feet, the highest in the history of Huntington, and now is stationary. The entire business section is inundated, water being up to the second floor in some buildings.

Governor H. D. Hatfield arrived here at 7 o'clock tonight on a special train from Charleston, bringing supplies, motorboats and skiffs. The boats now are being taken through the different sections of the city to rescue hundreds who are marooned. The local military company has taken charge of the rescue work.

The electric light plant has been forced to shut down, and this afternoon the gas supply was cut off to prevent fires.

The city is in great need of food and water.

While at a late hour today no reports had been received here from Point Pleasant, W. Va., Catlettsburg, Ky., and Ironton, O., it is believed conditions similar to those here prevail in those cities.

William Sullivan, whose wife and children were rescued Saturday, committed suicide by taking poison when he found that rescuers could not reach him.

It is thought that as soon as day breaks rescuers will be able to get into the heart of the flooded section. Just how many lives have been lost cannot be determined until conditions permit a thorough investigation.

Conditions Are Serious.

CINCINNATI, March 30.—Flood conditions at Portsmouth, O., and Huntington, W. Va., are reported serious tonight. Both cities are cut off from outside communication, but telephone reports from nearby towns state both cities are deep under water. At Portsmouth two lives are said to have been lost. Reports that a serious fire had occurred at Portsmouth are denied. Both towns are said to have suffered for three or four days.

To Use U. S. Marine Hospitals.

CINCINNATI, March 30.—Surgeon General Rupert Blue, anticipating serious flood conditions west of here, has wired commanding officers in charge of United States marine hospitals at Evansville, Ind.; Memphis, Tenn., and Cairo, Ill., to open the hospitals for flood victims. The surgeon general and his assistant, Dr. W. C. Rucker, will remain here to direct sanitation measures. Dr. Blue has available $200,000 of federal funds for work in the flooded district.

BOY IS ACCIDENTALLY KILLED WHILE HUNTING

DENVER, March 30.—Austin Morrell, 18 years old, son of Augustin Morrell, a local contractor, was accidentally shot and killed this afternoon while hunting with two boy companions in Montclair.

SENATOR BURLEIGH ILL

BALTIMORE, March 30.—It was learned tonight that United States Senator Edwin C. Burleigh of Maine had been a patient at Johns Hopkins for several days. The nature of the ailment from which the senator is suffering was not disclosed. He is 70 years old.

MAYOR JAMES C. DAHLMAN OF OMAHA, WHO HAS AIDED SO NOBLY THE RELIEF WORK IN THAT CITY.

IRONTON, O., SAID TO BE IN FLAMES

COLUMBUS, O., March 30.—The train dispatcher of the Norfolk & Western railroad received a telegram that fire had broken out in Ironton and a block and a half in the business center of the city had been consumed by fire. Several buildings were dynamited to check the flames. No loss of life had been reported.

COLUMBUS, O., March 30.—Reconstruction of the west side of Columbus, where the flood of last Tuesday wrought the heaviest damage, will be begun in earnest tomorrow by the citizens of that district. Twelve additional bodies were recovered today from the debris, but many of them have been identified as persons previously reported dead, so that the Columbus death list still remains at 84.

Many are reported missing, but the list is gradually growing smaller. Up to tonight 39 bodies had been recovered.

Working Day and Night.

Working day and night, laborers have succeeded in patching up the big break in the levee which caused the disaster on the west side. A second smaller break also is being repaired.

Plans were set afoot today for the prevention of a similar catastrophe.

The schemes which met with the greatest approval provided for diverting the Scioto river into the city into two different river beds and for the building of immense concrete draining levees along the banks of the present river bed.

The flooded west side still remains under martial law.

MARIETTA, O., March 30.—Flood water of the Ohio and Muskingum rivers reached a stage of 58.6 feet here late today, almost six feet higher than the record flood of 1884, and now is receding. Property damage is estimated at $2,000,000. Hundreds are homeless, many buildings and dwellings have been ruined, while the water, lighting and transportation facilities are out of commisson. It is believed a number of lives have been lost, but accurate information will not be forthcoming for days.

Marietta, until tonight, had been practically cut off from the outside world since Wednesday. The local company of the Seventh regiment, N. G. O., is guarding the town. Marietta is in need of clothing for men, women and children.

For a time Clark Griffith considered studying Spanish, so that he could converse with the Cubans, Acosta and Calvo. He decided, however, to make them learn English instead, and they are picking it up rapidly.

ESCAPED CONVICT STILL AT LIBERTY

LEAVENWORTH, Kas., March 30.—Clyde Stratton, notorious burglar, prison breaker, and suspect in Chicago motor bandit raids and diamond robberies, who escaped from the federal prison here yesterday by crawling through a sewer half a mile long, still is at liberty and, it is believed at the prison, is making his way from this part of the country, garbed in clothing exactly like that of the guards pursuing him. The camp of a soldier on a truck farm near Fort Leavenworth was robbed last night of clothing and canned food was taken.

Little hope is expressed at the prison that Stratton will be captured. It is the general belief that he is the ringleader of one of the best-organized bands of crooks in the country, and probably is getting all needful help to elude the officers.

ILLINOIS VICE HEARINGS WILL BE RESUMED TODAY

CHICAGO, March 30.—Hearings of the Illinois state legislature "white slavery" commission will be resumed here tomorrow. Conditions in "sweatshops" will be investigated by the legislators.

FORMER PRESIDENT TAFT AND FAMILY RETURN NORTH

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 30.—Former President William H. Taft, who has been at his winter cottage here since March 5, left at 6:15 this evening for New Haven, Conn., where he will take up his duties as professor of law at Yale university. With him were Mrs. Taft and Master Charles Taft.

IF LITTLE BOYS HAD MILLIONS

From the New York Tribune.

"What would you do if you were a millionaire?" was the question asked the little boys of an east side school the other day. Some of them wrote:

"I would have a house with rooms for each kind of use, such as sitting room, bedroom and dining room."

"I would buy banks and be a bank president at a large salary."

"I would live on Fifth avenue in a clean house and buy motor cars and chariots."

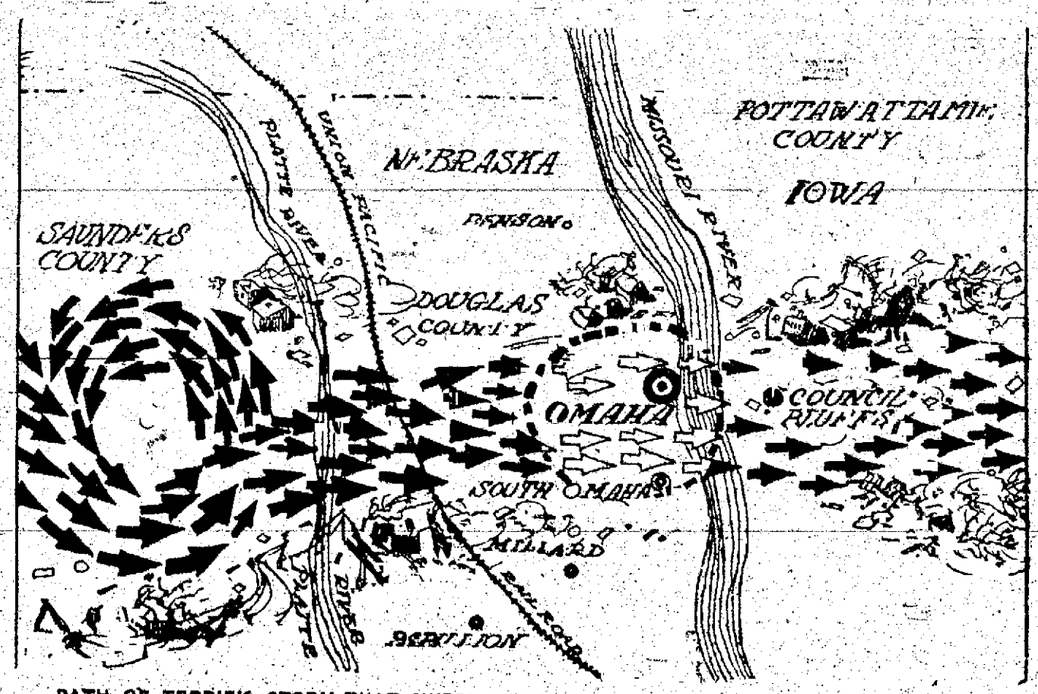

"I would be proud of my situation and also glad, and I would own motor cars and earn money by hiring them out."

"I would go to the finest movies every night, also matinees if possible."

"I would buy a yacht and be elected mayor and corner the market."

"I would feast my peasants, also institute an education school."

"I would buy the subway and get rich by charging 10 cents."

TWO LOCAL FAMILIES HEAR FROM RELATIVES

The fears of at least two local families concerning the safety of relatives and friends in Omaha, Neb., and Dayton, O., were removed yesterday. Mrs. Charles E. Smith of 615 North Tejon street received a special delivery letter from her niece, Miss Eva Mellor, of Omaha, and Judge H. G. Lunt received a telegram from Dr. and Mrs. Jewett of Dayton, O. Dr. and Mrs. Jewett are the parents of Mrs. Horace F. Lunt, Judge Lunt's daughter-in-law.

Miss Mellor has been attending Brownwell, an Episcopalian boarding school for girls in Omaha. She was unhurt, according to her letter. Sunday afternoon, the day of the tornado, she and several of her schoolmates had been at the house of one of her teachers for tea. An hour after they left the house it and all its occupants were swept away. Miss Mellor writes that the school is now closed and is being used as a hospital for refugees from the storm. Miss Mellor formerly lived in Colorado Springs.

The telegram which Judge Lunt received from Dr. Jewett read: "All safe and well. Dayton wiped out."

Why the city has no public comfort stations, and why it can have none under the financial policy adopted by Mayor Avery, will be explained by Judge McKesson at Temple theater tonight.

Members of the order are requested to bring their friends.

A special communication of Tejon lodge No. 104, A. F. & A. M., will be held at 7:30 o'clock this evening. Work in the Fellow Craft degree. Visiting Masons are invited to attend.

G. T. NICHOLSON, SANTA FE RAILWAY OFFICIAL, DIES

LOS ANGELES, March 30.—George T. Nicholson of Chicago, third vice president of the Santa Fe system, in charge of traffic, died tonight at a local hospital.

Mr. Nicholson arrived here three weks ago from Chicago. He was suffering from an abscess of the left ear and brain and he underwent an operation two weeks ago. It was thought the operation had been successful and he was removed to his hotel.

He suffered a setback, however, last Tuesday, and he was again taken to the hospital. Friday meningitis developed and little hope was held out for his recovery.

Mr. Nicholson was born in North Carolina in 1856 and was educated in the University of Kansas. He entered the service of the Santa Fe as a clerk in 1882.

DR. GARVIN GIVES TALK AT SOCIALIST MEETING

The Rev. Samuel Garvin, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, addressed the Socialist forum on "In the Wilderness and the Way Out," at its meeting in Carpenters hall last night. He spoke in part as follows:

It is both criminal and foolish to minimize the wrongs of our nation and try to make ourselves believe, by sticking our heads in the sand, that things are all right anyway. We do not believe, however, that we are surely bound for the demnition bowwows, but we do believe that if we are going to escape the rocks we shall have to do some clever steering, and strong rowing. May I enumerate a few of the evils with which we are doing battle today?

First: Evils of the Courts—President Taft told the lawyers of New York that the courts were organized today more to defeat justice than to promote it. We do not believe that even a large per cent of judges are venal. It is doubtless true that the federal courts are more so than any others, for the men who are at the head of our federal courts are usually appointed to those positions for political services and not for juricial fitness. Then it is true, almost universally, that a lawyer can get more money for defeating justice than promoting it, and there is, therefore, a great temptation here to which many of them yield. I do not believe that courts are often corrupted, but you can buy the brains of the best lawyers, whether your side is right or wrong.

Second: The Evil of Legislation—Pork barrel legislation is notorious. Men have been able to get appropriations for all kinds of useless things, provided they can marshal a good lobby. There has been some notorious juggling done. The tariff does not mean the difference between wages in the old world and new, but the difference between what protection and industry should have and what it could get by means of its influence upon congress, the more powerful the industry the higher the tariff. It would pay the state of Colorado better to buy up the whole sugar industry of the state and burn it than continue to keep the tariff on sugar.

Evils of Business.

Third: The Evils of Business—We will have to come to the principle, some time, that if a man does not work neither shall he eat. The first step toward getting proper economic conditions in this country is to eliminate the parasites. The millionaire bobo is just as bad as the fellow who begs a handout from the back door.

Fourth: Evils in Politics—The time has passed when men like Cincinnatus wait to be called from the plow to political position. The office seeking the man is a useless expression today. We need not call attention to conditions that are prevalent through political chicanery such as the police entanglements in New York or here, nor such grafts as the Pennsylvania and New York state houses. Men get into office often merely to aid their friends and line their own pockets. Ballinger insisted on clear listing the Guggenheim interests in Alaska, and thereby giving away $40,000,000 worth of public wealth.

Legislation that is far ahead of the community is always stillborn. This government is not founded on laws, but on men and women. Human society is a structure. The building of it requires much hewing and fashioning. The kind of stone or timber, much more than the architect's drawings, determines the worth of the house. If you have rotten timber or stone, you will have a rotten house, although it be designed upon the plan of the Parthenon. I believe in a good architecture, but I believe much more in having good materials with which to carry out the architect's plans. The biggest ethical and financial asset of a community is good men and women.

IMPOSTER AT WORK

Mrs. R. P. Curtis of Topeka, Kan., who is known as a "professional sobber," is an imposter, according to officials of the Associated Charities at Trinidad. The woman tells the story that she is searching for her grandchild, and by a pitiful plea is said to secure neat sums of money. Since the Omaha cyclone, she alleges that she lost relatives there. It is said the woman carries letters sent her by charitable persons of Colorado Springs who sympathized with her and gave her assistance.

Making Good Music Familiar Is Music Lovers' Task

"Popular music is familiar music and the problem is to make good music familiar."

Thus simply the problem of the lovers of good music, and those who wish to make the world love it, too, was stated in the excellent talk given Saturday morning by Miss Adele Baer Faulkner, organizer and director of the program study classes of the Thomas orchestra and of the opera classes of the Chicago Opera company, which she is preceding on its western tour, and it is to be regretted that there were not more people at the Princess theater to hear her most interesting address.

The talk was illustrated by music on the Victrola and by piano selections by Mr. Oberndorfer, and the illustrations helped greatly in making the speaker's points clear. She spoke of the bird's song, a thing without form, and a Victor record illustrated the simplicity of the song of a lark, and then she showed that when a sound was imitated it immediately took on form.

The original classic music, Miss Faulkner said, was really only a development of folk songs and dances. Bach, who was the first to develop the classic forms, took the folk songs from all countries, which the soldiers brought into Germany from all over Europe at the time of the Thirty Years' war, and he used them as a foundation for the classic forms that gradually grew more and more elaborate.

Poetry is the quality in music that gives the most pleasure. Beethoven's and Rubinstein's Romances were played to illustrate this quality. "Good music is that which is continually interesting," was the conclusion the speaker came to, and she expressed the hope that ultimately it might be true of this country, as it was in Italy and Germany, that the best music is the most popular.

There were about 82 people in the audience, which was not at all a measure of those who should be interested in the subject. If Miss Faulkner had already not been in Denver, enabling the Musical club to secure her for a smaller sum of money than her usual terms, the loss would have been more serious. However, they gave those who were fortunate enough to hear the speaker a real treat, and probably if she should ever come again her audience would be much larger. As it is, the club deserves the appreciation of the community for the efforts made in the interest of good music.

Oberndorfer played some of the principal motifs, and the audience was enabled to understand the beauty of the famous opera as they had not had the opportunity to do before. Some of the company had already determined to attend the operatic performances in Denver, and those who had not before planned to go were enthusiastic over the prospect.

The society editor requests that all news intended for this column should reach her before 6 o'clock on the evening before it is to appear. It can be given either personally or by telephone, Main 215, but it is necessary that it should reach her before that time.

Wellesley Alumnae Have Tea.

Miss Adelaide Denis entertained the members of the Wellesley club of Colorado Springs at a tea Saturday afternoon at the Alta Vista hotel, in honor of Miss Ruth Goodwin, Wellesley, 1898. Miss Goodwin is sent out by the Wellesley Alumnae council to visit the towns and cities where there are graduates of the institution, to meet the members of the alumnae councils already existing, and to assist in forming new ones. The Wellesley club of this city, with the one in Denver, constitute the alumnae council for the state, and other branches will be formed in the near future. The Wellesley graduates, with a few other college women, enjoyed the afternoon, with its renewing of old associations. Miss Goodwin left yesterday morning for Salt Lake and the west.

Talk on "Jewels of the Madonna."

Miss Anne Shaw Faulkner, who spoke at the Princess theater Saturday morning, is an old-time friend of Mrs. G. M. Pennoyer, 1019 North Nevada avenue, and she was her guest while here in the city. Mrs. Pennoyer and Miss Frances Rouse, feeling that the musical people of Colorado Springs would be interested in hearing Miss Faulkner again, decided late in the afternoon to invite the active members of the Musical club to meet her in the evening. The time was so short, and telephone numbers more or less disarranged, that not all the active members could be reached. But those who were able to go to the Pennoyer home enjoyed an evening of great pleasure. The subject Miss Faulkner chose was the "Jewels of the Madonna," which made so decided a hit in Chicago this winter, and which the Chicago Grand Opera company is to give in Denver. She has studied the manuscript of the play from Wolf-Ferrari's original, and has attended all the rehearsals, so, as she says, she "knows the score backward." Mr.

Vesper Tea Well Attended

The regular vesper service and tea at the rooms of the Young Women's Christian association yesterday afternoon was unusually well attended. The interest in these services seems to grow all the time, and the association may well be gratified at the attendance and cooperation.

The talk of the afternoon was by Mrs. J. Y. Ewart, who spoke on "The Ability to See Real Values." Mrs. Ewart described various physical kinds of blindness, and emphasized the fact that too often we are blind mentally and morally as well, or at least we do not have clear enough vision to see the important things, as distinguished from nonessentials. She spoke of familiar types, housekeepers who were too much intent upon keeping the house immaculate to have time to make a real home, and all the rest of us who waste our days upon comparatively unimportant things.

At the close of Mrs. Ewart's talk Miss Brinley voiced the regret that all the members of the association feel, that Miss McCulloch is so soon to leave the association, and hoped that she would find prosperity and health in her new home. Miss McCulloch responded gracefully.

Mrs. Charles Pelta was hostess at the tea, and she had provided sandwiches, tea and cake in abundance. Mrs. Sachs and Mrs. Oberndorfer poured tea, and assisting in serving were Mrs. Leipheimer, Mrs. Lorig, Mrs. Rosenberg, Mrs. Livermore, Mrs. Peyser, and Mrs. L. J. Pelta.

North End W. C. T. U.

The regular meeting of the North End Woman's Christian Temperance union held Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. A. W. Buchanan, 1332 North Corrade avenue, proved to be of great interest. Mrs. A. J. Carper read her paper on "Race Culture," which aroused an animated discussion, some of the speakers being Mrs. E. P. Crowley, Mrs. Jenny Shelley Boyd and Mrs. W. H. R. Stone. Rev. W. E. Bennett spoke in a convincing manner on "Some City Problems." Master Gerowe Simmons and little Miss Josephine Hildrich gave readings which were much enjoyed. A social hour was spent at the close of the program.

Deaf and Blind Pupils Attend Elks' Comedy

By invitation of the Elks, about 130 of the pupils of the Colorado Institute for the deaf and blind, with a number of the men from the Printers' home, attended the matinee performance of the musical comedy, "Kal-to-Kee." There were no more interested listeners and observers than these specially invited guests, and their applause showed their enjoyment. Perhaps they were more interested in the clever dancing of Miss Floy Sisco, who was so graceful in the "Moonlight" number sung by Cecil Rodgers.

TAILORED BLOUSE OF VOILE

Tailored models of voile, linen, silk and velveteen have taken the place of the much used and abused lingerie waist, now practically a memory only. Lace when used at all is usually combined with silk or some other of the before mentioned materials and used as applied bands, vests, collars, etc. Voile lends itself so admirably to tucked and pleated models that it easily holds the lead in separate blouse materials. It possesses also the much desired attribute of washing without injury. The model of today is a sample of the style of blouse used for plain tailored suits. Made of white washable voile is this and tucked finely on front and sleeves which reach to the hands. There is a detachable Robespierre collar of lace and satin bow at the neck. For this lace collar similar shapes of black or white satin would be stylish substitutes.

jury. If we had a jury of high-grade citizens, they might make the selection. If we had jurymen of another class they might have their own ideas about refined vaudeville. The danger of the ordinance is that the city has no power to look over the vaudeville or plays and decide what is proper."

David Elliot took the text for his talk from the circulars distributed by those interested in the restaurant liquor ordinance. The circulars asked that the city "extend to the tourists the same privileges that they can obtain in their own cities."

"Whenever any problems come up that relate to civic betterment," Mr. Elliot stated, "they always bring in the tourist, who is here but a few weeks on the average, and they forget the interests of the people who live here the year round. The people who come to Colorado Springs do not come to drink all night in restaurants, but to see the wonderful scenery and to enjoy the pure air and invigorating climate. They can get the other things in their home towns, and they come to get away from these influences.

Copy Best Features.

"If we are going to copy something from other cities, let us copy the best things. And what about the women tourists who form between 60 and 90 per cent of the visitors? Do they have to have their liquor and the Sunday theater? Are we going to be confronted with the perpetual sandwich? We want to keep our city as sweet as we can, and the Sunday theater will not bring this about."

The Rev. Merle N. Smith took his inspiration from the influence these measures would have on the boys and girls of Colorado Springs.

"Posterity furnishes us with the most powerful motive for bettering conditions and not for making them worse," he said. "We are concerned in the army of the future. Will these two ordinances be good for our boys and girls? Will they help the fathers and mothers to rear their children?"

The Rev. Mr. Smith said that he believes the coming session of the grand jury will help out Colorado Springs, because it will get officials out of the "twilight zone," which he expressed as between neglect and observance of the law, into the bright Colorado sunshine.

"It is the duty of Christian men to bury these ordinances beyond hope of any resurrection," he said. "The driving out of legalized liquor traffic is the next step in Colorado Springs, because any traffic that needs regulation needs death. We have 1,500 feet of liquor-selling frontage, and I would like to see that reduced.

Should Not Retreat.

"We are now being called to make a retreat from the position we are in. This is what the Christian citizenship should not do."

Mr. Smith referred to the two ordinances as "insults to the intelligence of a Christian community." "Let these ordinances be passed, and I promise you that a moral hurricane will sweep down upon this city two years hence that will make the last fight look like a pink tea at the old ladies' home," he said. "No community can survive with the loss of its Sabbath. We don't want to return to the Puritan Sabbath, but we do want a return to the Puritan conscience. However, I don't see why it is that if bad men get together and make bad laws, good men cannot get together and make good laws.

"We, as citizens, should look more carefully after law enforcement. We elect a man and let him get lonesome. We should stand behind them throughout."

Clarence P. Dodge presided at the meeting, and a number of ministers occupied seats on the platform. The Temple male quartet gave four selections.

Those in charge of the campaign against the two ordinances have opened headquarters at the Y. M. C. A., with Secretary E. B. Simmons in charge. Any men or women who can give part of all of tomorrow to the work, or who can donate the use of automobiles, are asked to notify Secretary Simmons.

Rev. A. N. Taft Strongly Opposed to Measures

The following letter was sent to Clarence P. Dodge, chairman of the union mass meeting last night night, by the Rev. Arthur N. Taft, rector of St. Stephens church, explaining Mr. Taft's reasons for opposing the liquor and Sunday amusement ordinances.

Mr. Taft's Letter.

I am very sorry I cannot attend the mass meeting tonight protesting against the two amendments which would permit the sale of liquor in restaurants and the opening of theaters for pay performances Sunday. I am unfortunately laid up with fossilitis.

The objections to the liquor amendment have been put very clearly and convincingly in The Gazette. The matter of the Sunday theater is probably not so clear in the minds of many people.

People are less and less inclined to force their religious convictions or prejudices upon others. We all want working people, whose opportunities for recreation may be small, to have every opportunity for legitimate and healthy amusement open to them on Sunday.

It is, in my opinion, a movement in the right direction when art galleries, libraries, municipal concerts, besides parks and playgrounds, are open on Sunday for the recreation of people working all through the week.

But pay performances in the theaters seem to me open to very serious objections. In the first place, the rule governing such performances is "we must give the people what they want," a rule held responsible for the present demoralization and vulgarity of our stage.

Outdoor Recreation Needed.

In the second place, we are an outdoor community, and our recreation should be developed along outdoor lines. This is especially necessary for the health of our young people. It is not wise to encourage them to frequent crowded places of amusement.

In the report on recreations in Milwaukee, I find that 40 per cent of the audiences Sunday afternoon and evening were under 15 years old, and 48 per cent between the ages of 15 and 25, while only 12 per cent were over 25. This does not bear out the plea that it is the working people who need the opportunity for recreation.

We want to build up the best sort of people for our future citizens. Health of body and vigor of mind are two necessary factors, and proper recreation plays a large part in both of them, and surely outdoor sports or indoor amusements that stimulate and develop the mind are the lines to be followed.

I think the Sunday concerts of the Musical club are much to be commended for this reason. But vaudeville performances and moving picture shows are not stimulating to the mind; rather they have the superficial effect of books that are all illustrations and no reading matter. And too often their effect is not only superficial, but cheap and demoralizing.

Faithfully yours,
ARTHUR N. TAFT.

Home Winston Churchill Selected by Pres. Wilson for His Summer Capital

CORNISH, N. H., March 30.—President Woodrow Wilson has chosen the home of Winston Churchill, the novelist, to be his summer capital, according to a telegram received here today from Mr. Churchill, who now is in Santa Barbara, Cal. The message contained instructions for getting the place in readiness for the president's occupancy.

Harla Benden house, as the Churchill property is known, is a two-story brick structure, situated on a hill three miles beyond Windsor, Vt. It commands a view of the Connecticut river valley and of the Green mountains.

Between 600 and 700 acres of rolling farm land and fragrant pine groves give the estate the seclusion the president desires.

On the estate are two seven-room cottages, where the executive offices can be established, and where the president's attendants may live. A tennis court adjoins the mansion house.

the cars. Miss Randall was hurled forward, her head struck the side of the car, and then she bounced back, falling with her feet towards the train and so close to the tracks that the wheels of the cars tore off the heels of her shoes. Miss Randall's body acted as a buffer for Cage, and he was practically unhurt. Both handle bars of the motorcycle, which bore the brunt of the collision with the car, were broken off.

The train, which consisted of some freight cars which a Santa Fe switching crew was taking from the Santa Fe station to the Denver & Rio Grande yards, was moving slowly, and was stopped within a few seconds after the accident.

Miss Randall has been working at the Colorado Springs laundry, and boards with her mother and sister at 105 South Nevada avenue. Cage works for the Wandell & Lowe Transfer and Storage company, and also boards at 105 South Nevada avenue.

The problem of how to secure employment for the unemployed laborers in our city will be discussed tonight at Temple theater by Judge McKesson.

Mier is en route to take command of the campaign in that territory. The slow mobilization of forces along the Chihuahua-Sonora border continues. Troops there are to be supplemented by forces sent in transports to Guaymas and Mazatlan. The government asserts that it soon will have 10,000 men in that region, including many of Orozco's army.

Thus far very few former rebels have actually engaged in the campaign.

Huerta and Diaz Disagree.

Residents of the capital are nervous because of the continued rumors of friction between Huerta and Gen. Felix Diaz, and of plots and intrigues, even to the fixing of dates when a new battle may be expected in the streets, or the assassination of one or the other of the principals. On Saturday so keen was the excitement that the president summoned newspaper men to the palace after midnight to issue a formal statement in which he said he and Felix Diaz still were friends and working in harmony, and that there was no truth in the street gossip.

Huerta's statement was reiterated by Diaz.

Gen. Geronimo Treviño, who recently resigned as governor of Nuevo Leon because of his alleged lack of sympathy with the Huerta regime, was a visitor at the capital today. He was shown all honors, being greeted by officials and escorted by troops. He was received in audience by the president, but no statement was made as to the object of his visit here.

rapidly, inundating lowlands, driving their occupants to higher ground and interrupting railroad service.

The tracks of the Louisville, Henderson and St. Louis railroad are under water at Hawesville and Griffith, eight miles west of Owensboro.

Henderson, Ky., practically is isolated by the suspension of all railroad service. Damage to the lowlands in that section, according to reports, will mount into the thousands.

The railroad situation in Louisville tonight became acute. The Louisville, Henderson & St. Louis suspended traffic entirely. The Louisville & Nashville from Cincinnati could reach the city only by detouring through Jeffersonville, Ind.

The Louisville, Indianapolis & Chicago succeeded in establishing service only as far as West Baden.

OMAHA SIGHTSEERS "TAGGED" FOR NEEDY

100,000 Out-of-Town Visitors View Devastated Districts of the City

OMAHA, March 30.—Omaha was the mecca for about 100,000 sightseers who came in from the surrounding country today to view the district devastated by last Sunday night's tornado. All railroads entering the city ran special trains with excursion rates for the benefit of the visitors. Brown clad militiamen were on guard at all intersections of the tornado zone, keeping the crowds constantly on the move. Rehabilitation and relief work was kept up all day.

The women of the city held a "tag day," and in this manner swelled the relief fund. The tags, according to reports, brought from 10 cents to $5 each and gave the visitors an opportunity to help the sufferers of the storm.

One of the novel sights to arrest the attention of the outsiders was the services in the Trinity Methodist church at Twenty-first and Binney. This church had a whole side torn off by the twister, but the enterprising parishioners patched it up with tarpaulins and castoff boards.

All appeals for help have been promptly met by the relief committee. They hope to raise a sufficient fund to give all in need a new grip on life. Work goes on slowly in the storm-swept area, and it will be some time before it assumes a normal appearance.

the Democratic majority is large, but Democratic leaders would welcome the shift of one or two Republican votes in the senate to strengthen their narrow majority which may be disturbed by a bitter fight on free sugar or upon the wool duty.

President Wilson's tariff message, the substance of which has been communicated to leaders of both houses of congress, is understood to have received general approval.

In the ten days that precede the opening of the special session it is planned to reach a general basis of agreement that will insure speedy action and a few changes in the tariff bills.

Features of Proposed Scheme.

The income tax plan, as framed, is expected by the Democratic leaders of the house to run the gauntlet of both houses successfully. The scheme embodies these features:

Exemptions—All income under $4,000; incomes of eleemosynary institutions, etc.

Rates—Minimum one per cent on $4,000; graduated up to a maximum of 4 per cent on $100,000 or more.

Method—Enforcement of the "collection at the source" principle so as to obviate personal assessments as much as possible; collection through corporations or other employers instead of directly from the employes whenever practicable.

The rates and exceptions still are subject to change, though the figures given are expected to stand. The income tax feature was written in its essentials by Representative Hill of Tennessee.

It is destined to bring into the treasury not far from $100,000,000, including the present corporation tax of about $30,000,000.

and swam icy floods and entered tottering buildings unhesitatingly in the course of duty. John H. Patterson, chairman of the general committee, found many operators last night who had not removed shoes or clothing since last Tuesday.

Martial Law Extended.

By order of Governor Cox the reign of martial law over Dayton was extended to take in the whole county today to prevent the sale of liquor in the suburbs. The flood swept away the city administration, temporarily at least, and brought in what amounts to a commission form of government.

Immediately martial law was proclaimed, the municipal administration was eclipsed. Adjutant General Wood became supreme under the governor.

On the heels of this Mr. Patterson was appointed chairman of a committee of five to administer the affairs of the city.

The militia was instructed to obey his orders and thus became a police force.

Sightseers in motor cars on the heavy hand of public necessity when General Wood ordered them from their cars and pressed the latter into public service. Those who protested were forced to surrender their cars at the points of rifles "until released by order of Chairman John H. Patterson."

Coroner J. W. McKemy estimated that 100 bodies have been recovered, though there are records of only 72. He said many had been buried without usual official action and that in many cases he did not expect to get records.

Only a Few Unidentified.

Hundreds of persons still looking for relatives passed along the lines at the morgues. Only a few bodies have not been identified.

Eight persons suffering from diphtheria are at the Miami Valley hospital. Seven of them were caught in a house with a person who had recently become ill with the disease. Four persons hemmed in with one who had measles are suffering with that disease.

Eight persons whose minds have temporarily become affected, because of hardships suffered in the flood, are being cared for at the state insane asylum.

With warmer weather the greatest problem was the removal of the carcasses of dead horses. Every available automobile truck and all the horse-drawn drays were impressed by the sanitary officials, and hundreds of men were engaged all day removing the carcasses to the different incinerating plants and to vacant plots on the outskirts of the city, where they are burned.

Large Forces at Work.

Merchants and those of their employes who could be found, were clearing the piles of wrecked stocks of merchandise with shovels, throwing the mud, in some places several feet deep, into the streets.

In Riverdale and North Dayton, where the flood waters attained the greatest depth, several thousand persons waded knee deep in slimy mud, rummaging their desolated homes for clothing.

It will be a long time before all Daytonians again live in their own homes. There are 15,000 residences which must be plastered and papered before they can be occupied. There are 4,500 houses which must have new foundations or new roofs, doors, windows and chimneys before their owners can move again. There are 2,000 houses which it will be necessary to raze. Engineers advise that this reconstruction work will require four months.

So far as the business and industrial buildings are concerned, it has been estimated by architects that it will require eight months before the repair work and rebuilding can be completed. Thousands of men will be employed and work will be pushed to the utmost. Large quantities of material have been ordered by telegraph to be shipped immediately.

The city still is without anything like an adequate water supply, and the danger of a conflagration still is the subject of grave concern.

Announcement was made that the principal needs of the people are drinking water, shoes, clothing, picks and shovels. Money also is wanted, although a considerable amount subscribed by cities throughout the country now is available.

Ernest P. Bicknell, national director of the American Red Cross, who arrived to confer with the local relief committee, said that a total of $500,000 was available for flood sufferers generally.

TRAIN GOES INTO RIVER

FONDA, N. Y., March 30.—New York Central train No. 33, the Buffalo Special, from Buffalo to New York, jumped the track at Yosts, near here, at 2:40 o'clock this morning. Three sleepers, a buffet car and express car and the day coach went into the Mohawk river and were partially submerged, but all passengers escaped. Seven persons were slightly hurt. The accident was due to the weakening of the track by floods.

PRISONERS SYMPATHIZE WITH FLOOD SUFFERERS

SACRAMENTO, Cal., March 30.—Resolutions expressing sympathy with the flood sufferers were adopted today by the prisoners at Folsom penitentiary. E. C. McCarty, convicted of forgery, drew up the resolutions. Other convicts requested that they be published "to show the outside world that the prisoners are not heartless or heedless of the suffering of others."

KING CONSTANTINE TO GO TO SALONIKI

ATHENS, March 30.—Immediately after the funeral of the late King George, which takes place Wednesday, King Constantine will go to Saloniki and remain there until peace has been declared. As in the case of King George, King Constantine's presence may be taken as a notification to Bulgaria that Greece intends to hold Saloniki as part of her spoils of war.

GOV. GONZALEZ KILLED BY TRAIN ON WHICH HE WAS TAKEN AS PRISONER

EL PASO, Tex., March 30.—Governor Gonzalez was killed by the wheels of the train bearing him, a prisoner, to Mexico City, according to an investigation based on the testimony of the train crew witnessing the affair. His hands tied behind his back, the Chihuahua governor fell between two cars while being transported from one coach to another. The army officers declared that the prisoner slipped and fell. The train was stopped and the body found almost cut in twain. A bullet from an army officer's pistol ended the governor's suffering.

Gonzalez, one of the most prominent Madero followers, was arrested shortly after the Mexico City revolt, when his state was placed under martial law.

Demetrio Bustamente, internal revenue collector of Juarez, during last night came to El Paso with the funds of his office, which he turned over to the Constitutionalist "junta" here. He left a brief note addressed to "The Usurper Huerta," in which he explained that he had been appointed by Madero and that the funds of the office he believed belonged to the new revolutionists, who were upholders of the policies of the late president.

ople and that the Bulgars will not attempt to pierce the lines, which recently have been strengthened by the addition of heavy siege guns.

The fall of Adrianople has caused a feeling of deepest dejection in all sections, which has tended to increase the unpopularity of the government.

A message from the British vice consul at Adrianople states that all the consuls and foreign communities are safe and well. His report says that the Bulgarians took only 15,000 prisoners, the rest of the garrison being in hiding.

The porte has instructed the commander at Scutari to permit the departure of the civilian population. It is expected that the powers' note on the subject of mediation will be presented to the porte tomorrow.

Montenegro Active.

CETTINJE, March 30.—Since yesterday the Montenegrin artillery on the main front before Scutari has been developing great activity. The Turkish positions on the plain before the town have been heavily bombarded, and the Turks have been driven from the entrenchments near the River Kir by the persistent artillery fire.

Horrible Stories of Hardships.

BELGRADE, March 30.—The first trainload of wounded Servians arrived here today from Adrianople. Their story shows that the fighting which preceded the capture of Adrianople was the most terrible of the war. The Turks fought with the courage of desperation, but the perseverance of the Servians, and the excellent leadership of the commanders, resulted in their gaining the day. Some of the men were very severely wounded, but the majority are suffering only from slight bullet wounds.

The press unfavorably discusses Russia's action in joining the other powers in presenting a note to Servia and Montenegro with regard to Scutari and Albania. It was hoped until the last that Russia would withhold her support of the note.

One of the wounded officers said: "The siege was an unbroken chain of suffering for the besiegers, which reached its climax in the bitter cold of January and February. The snow lay six feet deep and sentries died at their posts. The skin of every soldier was parched by the intense frost, while in the trenches the men's feet were cut by the sharp ice breaking every morning under their steps. They slept in mud and water, covered only by canvas.

"On some days dozens of men were frozen to death. There were snow plains for 20 miles around, no wood could be found and, even when it was brought, fires were forbidden, so as not to betray our positions."

GEORGE W. M'CLUSKY

George W. McClusky, for many years called "Cheesy George" by those who did not like the famous police inspector of New York, it has just been discovered left a fortune of more than three-quarters of a million. The lowest salary received by McClusky during his 30 years as a bluecoat was $800 a year and the highest $3,500.

The sources of McClusky's income above his salary are not known, but in the tenderloin there are very positive opinions about it. For a long time he was in charge of the tenderloin district, and then the gambling houses and similar institutions never closed.

McClusky during his lifetime occasionally dropped a hint about Wall street speculation. It is known that he had many wealthy men among his friends, and it is possible that some of them gave him tips on the market. Since the inspector divided his wealth among his three sisters before his death there was no will filed, and nothing definite could be learned about his fortune.

WEST VIRGINIA CITIES SWEPT BY THE FLOODS

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., March 30.—The crest of the Ohio river flood reached here late today, with a stage of 58.6 feet, six feet higher than the record of 1884. The river is receding slowly. Two companies of militia are guarding the town. Most of the residents of Belpre have sought safety here. Belleville, 18 miles away, is practically wiped out, and the people are running over the hills. It is reported several lives have been lost at Belleville, but it is impossible to verify the reports tonight. A relief party started for Belleville late today.

Two lives were lost here. Fully 5,000 persons are homeless here and at Belpre and Belleville. It is said all the houses on Blennerhassett island have been swept away. The residents of the island were rescued in small boats.

Word received here from Marietta, O., today reported no lives lost there, but thousands are homeless. The entire business section of Marietta is inundated.

Huntington, W. Va., in Darkness.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., March 30.—(Via telephone to Pittsburg.)—This city is in total darkness tonight. Is facing both a food and water famine, and 10,000 of the 40,000 inhabitants are homeless. Twelve persons are reported missing, and the property damage, according to close estimates, will amount to nearly $1,000,000.

This afternoon at 4 o'clock the river reached a stage of 66.2 feet, the highest in the history of Huntington, and now is stationary. The entire business section is inundated, water being up to the second floor in some buildings.

Governor H. D. Hatfield arrived here at 7 o'clock tonight on a special train from Charleston, bringing supplies, motorboats and skiffs. The boats now are being taken through the different sections of the city to rescue hundreds who are marooned. The local military company has taken charge of the rescue work.

The electric light plant has been forced to shut down, and this afternoon the gas supply was cut off to prevent fires.

The city is in great need of food and water.

While at a late hour today no reports had been received here from Point Pleasant, W. Va.; Catlettsburg, Ky., and Ironton, O., it is believed conditions similar to those here prevail in those cities.

William Sullivan, whose wife and children were rescued Saturday, committed suicide by taking poison when he found that rescuers could not reach him.

It is thought that as soon as day breaks rescuers will be able to get into the heart of the flooded section. Just how many lives have been lost cannot be determined until conditions permit a thorough investigation.

Conditions Are Serious.

CINCINNATI, March 30.—Flood conditions at Portsmouth, O., and Huntington, W. Va., are reported serious tonight. Both cities are cut off from outside communication, but telephone reports from nearby towns state both cities are deep under water. At Portsmouth two lives are said to have been lost. Reports that a serious fire had occurred at Portsmouth are denied. Both towns are said to have suffered for three or four days.

To Use U. S. Marine Hospitals.

CINCINNATI, March 30.—Surgeon General Rupert Blue, anticipating serious flood conditions west of here, has wired commanding officers in charge of United States marine hospitals at Evansville, Ind.; Memphis, Tenn., and Cairo, Ill., to open the hospitals for flood victims. The surgeon general and his assistant, Dr. W. C. Rucker, will remain here to direct sanitation measures. Dr. Blue has available $200,000 of federal funds for work in the flooded district.

BOY IS ACCIDENTALLY KILLED WHILE HUNTING

DENVER, March 30.—Austin Morrell, 16 years old, son of Augustin Morrell, a local contractor, was accidentally shot and killed this afternoon while hunting with two boy companions in Montclair.

SENATOR BURLEIGH ILL

BALTIMORE, March 30.—It was learned tonight that United States Senator Edwin C. Burleigh of Maine had been a patient at Johns Hopkins for several days. The nature of the ailment from which the senator is suffering was not disclosed. He is 70 years old.

MAYOR JAMES C. DAHLMAN OF OMAHA, WHO HAS AIDED SO NOBLY THE RELIEF WORK IN THAT CITY.

IRONTON, O., SAID TO BE IN FLAMES

COLUMBUS, O., March 30.—The train dispatcher of the Norfolk & Western railroad received a telegram that fire had broken out in Ironton and a block and a half in the business center of the city had been consumed by fire. Several buildings were dynamited to check the flames. No loss of life had been reported.

COLUMBUS, O., March 30.—Reconstruction of the west side of Columbus, where the flood of last Tuesday wrought the heaviest damage, will be begun in earnest tomorrow by the citizens of that district. Twelve additional bodies were recovered today from the debris, but many of them have been identified as persons previously reported dead, so that the Columbus death list still remains at 84. Many are reported missing, but the list is gradually growing smaller. Up to tonight 59 bodies had been recovered.

Working Day and Night.

Working day and night, laborers have succeeded in patching up the big break in the levee which caused the disaster on the west side. A second smaller break also is being repaired.

Plans were set afoot today for the prevention of a similar catastrophe.

The schemes which met with the greatest approval provided for diverting the Scioto river into the city into two different river beds and for the building of immense concrete draining levees along the banks of the present river bed.

The flooded west side still remains under martial law.

MARIETTA, O., March 30.—Flood water of the Ohio and Muskingum rivers reached a stage of 58.6 feet here late today, almost six feet higher than the record flood of 1884, and now is receding. Property damage is estimated at $2,000,000. Hundreds are homeless, many buildings and dwellings have been ruined, while the water, lighting and transportation facilities are out of commission. It is believed a number of lives have been lost, but accurate information will not be forthcoming for days.

Marietta, until tonight, had been practically cut off from the outside world since Wednesday. The local company of the Seventh regiment, N. G. O., is guarding the town. Marietta is in need of clothing for men, women and children.

For a time Clark Griffith considered studying Spanish, so that he could converse with the Cubans, Acosta and Cajvo. He decided, however, to make them learn English instead, and they are picking it up rapidly.

ESCAPED CONVICT STILL AT LIBERTY

LEAVENWORTH, Kas., March 30.—Clyde Stratton, notorious burglar, prison breaker, and suspect in Chicago motor bandit raids and diamond robberies, who escaped from the federal prison here yesterday by crawling through a sewer half a mile long, still is at liberty and, it is believed at the prison, is making his way from this part of the country, garbed in clothing exactly like that of the guards pursuing him. The camp of a soldier on a truck farm near Fort Leavenworth was robbed last night of clothing and canned food was taken.

Little hope is expressed at the prison that Stratton will be captured. It is the general belief that he is the ringleader of one of the best-organized bands of crooks in the country, and probably is getting all needful help to elude the officers.

ILLINOIS VICE HEARINGS WILL BE RESUMED TODAY

CHICAGO, March 30.—Hearings of the Illinois state legislature "white slavery" commission will be resumed here tomorrow. Conditions in "sweatshops" will be investigated by the legislators.

FORMER PRESIDENT TAFT AND FAMILY RETURN NORTH

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 30.—Former President William H. Taft, who has been at his winter cottage here since March 5, left at 5:15 this evening for New Haven, Conn., where he will take up his duties as professor of law at Yale university. With him were Mrs. Taft and Master Charles Taft.

IF LITTLE BOYS HAD MILLIONS

From the New York Tribune.

"What would you do if you were a millionaire?" was the question asked the little boys of an east side school the other day. Some of them wrote:

"I would have a house with rooms for each kind of use, such as sitting room, bedroom and dining room."

"I would buy banks and be a bank president at a large salary."

"I would live on Fifth avenue in a clean house and buy motor cars and chariots."

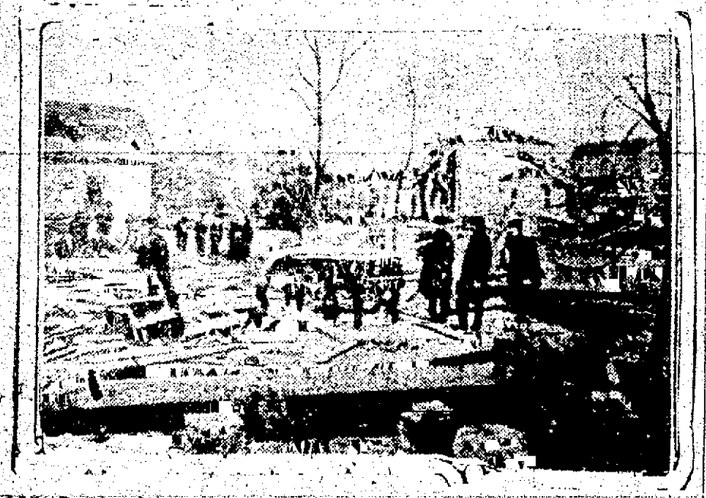

"I would be proud of my situation and also glad, and I would own motor cars and earn money by hiring them out."

"I would go to the finest movies every night, also matinees if possible."

"I would buy a yacht and be elected mayor and corner the market."

"I would feast my peasants, also institute an education school."

"I would buy the subway and get rich by charging 10 cents."

TWO LOCAL FAMILIES HEAR FROM RELATIVES

The fears of at least two local families concerning the safety of relatives and friends in Omaha, Neb., and Dayton, O., were removed yesterday. Mrs. Charles E. Smith of 615 North Tejon street received a special delivery letter from her niece, Miss Eva Mellor, of Omaha, and Judge H. G. Lunt received a telegram from Dr. and Mrs. Jewett of Dayton. O. Dr. and Mrs. Jewett are the parents of Mrs. Horace F. Lunt, Judge Lunt's daughter-in-law.

Miss Mellor has been attending Brownwell, an Episcopalian boarding school for girls in Omaha. She was unhurt, according to her letter. Sunday afternoon, the day of the tornado, she and several of her schoolmates had been at the house of one of her teachers for tea. An hour after they left the house it and all its occupants were swept away. Miss Mellor writes that the school is now closed and is being used as a hospital for refugees from the storm. Miss Mellor formerly lived in Colorado Springs.

The telegram which Judge Lunt received from Dr. Jewett read: "All safe and well. Dayton wiped out."

Why the city has no public comfort stations, and why it can have none under the financial policy adopted by Mayor Avery, will be explained by Judge McKesson at Temple theater tonight.

G. T. NICHOLSON, SANTA FE RAILWAY OFFICIAL, DIES

LOS ANGELES, March 30.—George T. Nicholson of Chicago, third vice president of the Santa Fe system, in charge of traffic, died tonight at a local hospital.

Mr. Nicholson arrived here three weks ago from Chicago. He was suffering from an abscess of the left ear and brain and he underwent an operation two weeks ago. It was thought the operation had been successful and he was removed to his hotel.

He suffered a setback, however, last Tuesday, and he was again taken to the hospital. Friday meningitis developed and little hope was held out for his recovery.

Mr. Nicholson was born in North Carolina in 1856 and was educated in the University of Kansas. He entered the service of the Santa Fe as a clerk in 1882.

DR. GARVIN GIVES TALK AT SOCIALIST MEETING

The Rev. Samuel Garvin, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, addressed the Socialist forum on "In the Wilderness and the Way Out," at its meeting in Carpenters hall last night. He spoke in part as follows:

It is both criminal and foolish to minimize the wrongs of our nation and try to make ourselves believe, by sticking our heads in the sand, that things are all right anyway. We do not believe, however, that we are surely bound for the demnition bowwows, but we do believe that if we are going to escape the rocks we shall have to do some clever steering, and strong rowing. May I enumerate a few of the evils with which we are doing battle today?

First. Evils of the Courts—President Taft told the lawyers of New York that the courts were organized today more to defeat justice than to promote it. We do not believe that even a large per cent of judges are venal. It is doubtless true that the federal courts are more so than any others, for the men who are at the head of our federal courts are usually appointed to those positions for political services and not for juricial fitness. Then it is true, almost universally, that a lawyer can get more money for defeating justice than promoting it, and there is, therefore, a great temptation here to which many of them yield. I do not believe that courts are often corrupted, but you can buy the brains of the best lawyers, whether your side is right or wrong.

Second. The Evil of Legislation—Pork barrel legislation is notorious. Men have been able to get appropriations for all kinds of useless things, provided they can marshal a good lobby. There has been some notorious juggling done. The tariff does not mean the difference between wages in the old world and new, but the difference between what protection and industry should have and what it could get by means of its influence upon congress; the more powerful the industry the higher the tariff. It would pay the state of Colorado better to buy up the whole sugar industry of the state and burn it than continue to keep the tariff on sugar.

Evils of Business.

Third. The Evils of Business—We will have to come to the principle, some time, that if a man does not work neither shall he eat. The first step toward getting proper economic conditions in this country is to eliminate the parasites. The millionaire bobo is just as bad as the fellow who begs a handout from the back door.

Fourth. Evils in Politics—The time has passed when men like Cincinnatus wait to be called from the plow to political position. The office seeking the man is a useless expression today. We need not call attention to conditions that are prevalent through political chicanery, such as the police entanglements in New York or here, nor such grafts as the Pennsylvania and New York state houses. Men get into office often merely to aid their friends and line their own pockets. Ballinger insisted on clear listing the Guggenheim interests in Alaska, and thereby giving away $10,000,000 worth of public wealth.

Legislation that is far ahead of the community is always stillborn. This government is not founded on laws, but on men and women. Human society is a structure. The building of it requires much hewing and fashioning. The kind of stone or timber, much more than the architect's drawings, determines the worth of the house. If you have rotten timber or stone, you will have a rotten house, although it be designed upon the plan of the Parthenon. I believe in a good architecture, but I believe much more in having good materials with which to carry out the architect's plans. The biggest ethical and financial asset of a community is good men and women.

IMPOSTER AT WORK

Mrs. R. P. Curtis of Topeka, Kan., who is known as a "professional sobber," is an imposter, according to officials of the Associated Charities at Trinidad. The woman tells the story that she is searching for her grandchild, and by a pitiful plea is said to secure neat sums of money. Since the Omaha cyclone, she alleges that she lost relatives there. It is said the woman carries letters sent her by charitable persons of Colorado Springs who sympathized with her and gave her assistance.

SOCIETY

Making Good Music Familiar Is Music Lovers' Task

Popular music is familiar music, and the problem is to make good music familiar.

Thus simply the problem of the lovers of good music, and those who wish to make the world love it, too, was stated in the excellent talk given Saturday morning by Miss Alma Beck Faulkner, organizer and director of the program study classes of the Thomas orchestra, and of the opera classes of the Chicago Opera company, which she is preceding on its western tour, and it is to be regretted that there were not more people at the Princess theater to hear her most interesting address.

The talk was illustrated by music on the Victrola and by piano selections by Mr. Oberndorfer, and the illustrations helped greatly in making the speaker's points clear. She spoke of the bird's song, a thing without form, and a Victor record illustrated the simplicity of the song of a lark, and then she showed that when a sound was imitated it immediately took on form.

The original classic music, Miss Faulkner said, was really only a development of folk songs and dances. Bach, who was the first to develop the classic forms, took the folk songs from all countries, which the soldiers brought into Germany from all over Europe at the time of the Thirty Years' war, and he used them as a foundation for the classic forms that gradually grew more and more elaborate.

Poetry is the quality in music that gives it [illegible], and Beethoven's and Rubinstein's Romances were played to illustrate this quality. "Good music is that which is continually interesting," was the conclusion the speaker came to, and she expressed the hope that ultimately it might be true of this country as it was in Italy and Germany that the best music is the most popular.

There were about 82 people in the audience, which was not at all a measure of those who should be interested in the subject. If Miss Faulkner had already not been in Denver, enabling the Musical club to secure her for a smaller sum of money than her usual terms, the loss would have been more serious. However, they gave those who were fortunate enough to hear the speaker a real treat, and probably if she should ever come again her audience would be much larger. As it is, the club deserves the appreciation of the community for the efforts made in the interest of good music.

The society editor requests that all news intended for this column should reach her before 6 o'clock on the evening before it is to appear. It can be given either personally or by telephone, Main 215, but it is necessary that it should reach her before that time.

Wellesley Alumnae Have Tea.

Miss Adelaide Denis entertained the members of the Wellesley club of Colorado Springs at a tea Saturday afternoon at the Alta Vista hotel, in honor of Miss Ruth Goodwin, Wellesley, 1898. Miss Goodwin is sent out by the Wellesley Alumnae council to visit the towns and cities where there are graduates of the institution, to meet the members of the alumnae councils already existing, and to assist in forming new ones. The Wellesley club of this city, with the one in Denver, constitute the alumnae council for the state, and other branches will be formed in the near future. The Wellesley graduates, with a few other college women, enjoyed the afternoon, with its renewing of old associations. Miss Goodwin left yesterday morning for Salt Lake and the west.

Talk on "Jewels of the Madonna."

Miss Anne Shaw Faulkner, who spoke at the Princess theater Saturday morning, is an old-time friend of Mrs. G. M. Pennoyer, 1019 North Nevada avenue, and she was her guest while here in the city. Mrs. Pennoyer and Miss Frances Rouse, feeling that the musical people of Colorado Springs would be interested in hearing Miss Faulkner again, decided late in the afternoon to invite the active members of the Musical club to meet her in the evening. The time was so short, and telephone numbers more or less disarranged, that not all the active members could be reached. But those who were able to go to the Pennoyer home enjoyed an evening of great pleasure. The subject Miss Faulkner chose was the "Jewels of the Madonna," which made so decided a hit in Chicago this winter, and which the Chicago Grand Opera company is to give in Denver. She has studied the manuscript of the play from Wolf-Ferrari's original, and has attended all the rehearsals, so, as she says, she "knows the score backward." Mr. Oberndorfer played some of the principal motifs, and the audience was enabled to understand the beauty of the famous opera as they had not had the opportunity to do before. Some of the company had already determined to attend the operatic performances in Denver, and those who had not before planned to go were enthusiastic over the prospect.

Vesper Tea Well Attended

The regular vesper service and tea at the rooms of the Young Women's Christian association yesterday afternoon was unusually well attended. The interest in these services seems to grow all the time, and the association may well be gratified at the attendance and cooperation.

The talk of the afternoon was by Mrs. J. Y. Ewart, who spoke on "The Ability to See Real Values." Mrs. Ewart described various physical kinds of blindness, and emphasized the fact that too often we are blind mentally and morally as well, or at least we do not have clear enough vision to see the important things, as distinguished from nonessentials. She spoke of familiar types, housekeepers who were too much intent upon keeping the house immaculate to have time to make a real home, and all the rest of us who waste our days upon comparatively unimportant things.

At the close of Mrs. Ewart's talk Miss Brinley voiced the regret that all the members of the association feel that Miss McCulloch is so soon to leave the association, and hoped that she would find prosperity and health in her new home. Miss McCulloch responded gracefully.

Mrs. Charles Pelta was hostess at the tea, and she had provided sandwiches, tea and cake in abundance. Mrs. Sachs and Mrs. Oberndorfer poured tea, and assisting in serving were Mrs. Leipheimer, Mrs. Lorig, Mrs. Rosenberg, Mrs. Livermore, Mrs. Peyser, and Mrs. L. J. Pelta.

North End W. C. T. U.

The regular meeting of the North End Woman's Christian Temperance union held Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. A. W. Buchanan, 1382 North Cascade avenue, proved to be of great interest. Mrs. A. J. Carper read her paper on, "Race Culture," which aroused an animated discussion, some of the speakers being Mrs. E. P. Crowley, Mrs. Jenny Shelley Boyd and Mrs. W. H. R. Stote. Rev. W. E. Bennett spoke in a convincing manner on "Some City Problems." Master Gerowe Simmons and little Miss Josephine Hildrich gave readings which were much enjoyed. A social hour was spent at the close of the program.

Deaf and Blind Pupils Attend Elks' Comedy

By invitation of the Elks, about 150 of the pupils of the Colorado Institute for the deaf and blind, with a number of the men from the Printers' home, attended the matinee performance of the musical comedy, "Kal-to-Kee." There were no more interested listeners and observers than these specially invited guests, and their enjoyment. Perhaps they were more interested in the clever dancing of Miss Floy Sisco, who was so graceful in the "Moonlight" number sung by Cecil Rodgers.

jury. If we had a jury of high-grade citizens, they might make the selection. If we had jurymen of another class they might have their own ideas about refined vaudeville. The danger of the ordinance is that the city has no power to look over the vaudeville or plays and decide what is proper."

David Elliot took the text for his talk from the circulars distributed by those interested in the restaurant liquor ordinance. The circulars asked that the city extend to the tourists the same privileges that they can obtain in their own cities.

"Whenever any problems come up that relate to civic betterment," Mr. Elliot stated, "they always bring in the tourist, who is here but a few weeks on the average and they forget the interests of the people who live here the year round. The people who come to Colorado Springs do not come to drink all night in restaurants, but to see the wonderful scenery and to enjoy the pure air and invigorating climate. They can get the other things in their home towns, and they come to get away from these influences.

Copy Best Features.

"If we are going to copy something from other cities, let us copy the best things. And what about the women tourists who form between 60 and 90 per cent of the visitors? Do they have to have their liquor and the Sunday theater? Are we going to be confronted with the perpetual sandwich? We want to keep our city as sweet as we can, and the Sunday theater will not bring this about."

The Rev. Merle N. Smith took his inspiration from the influence these measures would have on the boys and girls of Colorado Springs.

"Posterity furnishes us with the most powerful motive for bettering conditions and not for making them worse," he said. "We are concerned in the army of the future. Will these two ordinances be good for our boys and girls? Will they help the fathers and mothers to rear their children?"

The Rev. Mr. Smith said that he believes the coming session of the grand jury will help out—Colorado Springs, because it will get officials out of the "twilight zone," which he expressed as between neglect and observance of the law, into the bright Colorado sunshine.

"It is the duty of Christian men to bury these ordinances beyond hope of any resurrection," he said. "The driving out of legalized liquor traffic is the next step in Colorado Springs, because any traffic that needs regulation needs death. We have 1,500 feet of liquor-selling frontage, and I would like to see that reduced.

Should Not Retreat.

"We are now being called to make a retreat from the position we are in. This is what the Christian citizenship should not do."

Mr. Smith referred to the two ordinances as "insults to the intelligence of a Christian community." "Let these ordinances be passed, and I promise you that a moral hurricane will sweep down upon this city two years hence that will make the last fight look like a pink tea at the old ladies' home," he said. "No community can survive with the loss of its Sabbath. We don't want to return to the Puritan Sabbath, but we do want a return to the Puritan conscience. However, I don't see why it is that if bad men get together and make bad laws, good men cannot get together and make good laws.

"We, as citizens, should look more carefully after law enforcement. We elect a man and let him get lonesome. We should stand behind them throughout."

Clarence P. Dodge presided at the meeting, and a number of ministers occupied seats on the platform. The Temple male quartet gave four selections.

Those in charge of the campaign against the two ordinances have opened headquarters at the Y. M. C. A. with Secretary E. B. Simmons in charge. Any men or women who can give part or all of tomorrow to the work, or who can donate the use of automobiles, are asked to notify Secretary Simmons.

Rev. A. N. Taft Strongly Opposed to Measures

The following letter was sent by Clarence P. Dodge, chairman of the union mass meeting last night, by the Rev. Arthur N. Taft, rector of St. Stephens church, explaining Mr. Taft's reasons for opposing the liquor and Sunday amusement ordinances.

Mr. Taft's Letter.

I am very sorry I cannot attend the mass meeting tonight protesting against the two amendments which would permit the sale of liquor in restaurants and the opening of theaters for pay performances Sunday. I am unfortunately tied up with tonsilitis.

The objections to the liquor amendment have been put very clearly and convincingly in The Gazette. The matter of the Sunday theater is probably not so clear in the minds of many people.

People are less and less inclined to force their religious convictions or prejudices upon others. We all want working people, whose opportunities for recreation may be small, to have every opportunity for legitimate and healthy amusement open to them on Sunday.

It is, in my opinion, a movement in the right direction when art galleries, libraries, municipal concerts, besides parks and playgrounds, are open on Sunday for the recreation of people working all through the week.

But pay performances in the theaters seem to me open to very serious objections. In the first place, the rule governing such performances is "we must give the people what they want," a rule held responsible for the present demoralization and vulgarity of our stage.

Outdoor Recreation Needed.

In the second place, we are an outdoor community, and our recreation should be developed along outdoor lines. This is especially necessary for the health of our young people. It is not wise to encourage them to frequent crowded places of amusement. In the report on recreations in Milwaukee, I find that 40 per cent of the audiences Sunday afternoon and evening were under 15 years old, and 48 per cent between the ages of 15 and 25, while only 12 per cent were over 25. This does not bear out the plea that it is the working people who need the opportunity for recreation.

We want to build up the best sort of people for our future citizens. Health of body and vigor of mind are two necessary factors, and proper recreation plays a large part in both of them, and surely outdoor sports or indoor amusements that stimulate and develop the mind are the lines to be followed.

I think the Sunday concerts of the Musical club are much to be commended for this reason. But vaudeville performances and moving picture shows are not stimulating to the mind; rather they have the superficial effect of books that are all illustrations and no reading matter. And too often their effect is not only superficial, but cheap and demoralizing.

Faithfully yours,
ARTHUR N. TAFT.

Home Winston Churchill Selected by Pres. Wilson for His Summer Capital

CORNISH, N. H., March 30.—President Woodrow Wilson has chosen the home of Winston Churchill, the novelist, to be his summer capital, according to a telegram received here today from Mr. Churchill, who now is in Santa Barbara, Cal. The message contained instructions for getting the place in readiness for the president's occupancy.

Harla Benden house, as the Churchill property is known, is a two-story brick structure, situated on a hill three miles beyond Windsor, Vt. It commands a view of the Connecticut river valley and of the Green mountains.

Between 600 and 700 acres of rolling farm land and fragrant pine groves give the estate the seclusion the president desires.

On the estate are two seven-room cottages, where the executive offices can be established, and where the president's attendants may live. A tennis court adjoins the mansion house.

TAILORED BLOUSE OF VOILE

Tailored models of voile, linen, silk and velveteen have taken the place of the much used and abused lingerie waist, now practically a memory only. Lace when used at all is usually combined with silk or some other of the before mentioned materials and used as applied bands, vests, collars, etc. Voile lends itself so admirably to tucked and pleated models that it easily holds the lead in separate blouse materials. It possesses also the much desired attribute of washing without injury. The model of today is a sample of the style of blouse used for plain tailored suits. Made of white washable voile is this and tucked finely on front and sleeves which reach to the hands. There is a detachable Robespierre collar of lace and satin bow at the neck. For this lace collar similar shapes of black or white satin would be stylish substitutes.

A MOST IMPORTANT ELECTION

NOT until months after a national election do its results make themselves felt in the various communities of the United States. And even then the difference, if there is any at all, is usually but slight, affecting the individual only indirectly.

But it is not so with city elections. There should be, in Colorado Springs, a vast difference in our city government immediately after Tuesday's election. There should be a thorough cleaning up in the police department, an entirely new spirit should animate that important part of the city administration.

There should be, too, a new spirit pervading the whole city government. Instead of being satisfied merely to drift along, hoping there will come in enough money for the city's necessary expenditures, and issuing excess warrants if the expectation is not realized, there should be adopted at once a cash policy—one that will hold expenditures strictly within income.

But far more is needed than that. Colorado Springs needs a larger income; it must have a larger income if it is to undertake and carry forward the great works of municipal improvement now waiting to be done. Larger income may result either from a cutting down of expenses or an increase of gross revenues. And what Colorado Springs needs is an administration that will have the business foresight and wisdom to inaugurate a policy that will accomplish this greatly to be desired result.

These are the changes that may come to pass, or be put in the way of realization, following the election Tuesday. But will they come to pass? That depends upon the people of Colorado Springs. They have it within their power to elect men to city office who will carry out these needed reforms. And they will elect such men if they put out of their minds all personal animosities, and vote for men, regardless of party, who sympathize with the program of municipal advancement outlined above.

The progress and growth of the city during the next four years depend largely upon the way the votes are cast on Tuesday.

STILL OWNED BY THE BOSSES

THOSE who have been hoping for a rehabilitation of the Republican party in this state cannot have derived much comfort from recent events in Colorado. It is really the Republican party and not Senator Barela that is on trial in the case now being fought out in the state senate. For Barela is but a tool of the bosses who are the Republican party in Colorado. Barela is one of the reasons, among many others, why Colorado's Republican party has forfeited completely the confidence of the people. Other reasons, and most of them more potent, are Guggenheim, Devine, Stephenson, Evans, Jeff Farr.

If the Republican party should rid itself of these men, and of all that they represent, then there might be chance of its redemption. But is it making any effort to do so? On the contrary, we find the Republican machine—the same old machine that has disgraced the state these many years—making most strenuous efforts to retain Barela in his seat in the senate, and to continue in Las Animas county the unspeakable conditions that have resulted from the long continued political debauchery of which Barela and his state bosses have been the beneficiaries.

Of the 11 Republicans in the state senate, only two have had the courage to defy the bosses and to work for the redemption of the party from the curse that has so long rested upon it. And these two were elected, not as straight Republicans, but with Progressive indorsement. Nine out of the eleven, on the contrary, are working in every devious manner possible to keep Barela in his seat. And when the Colorado Republican party schemes through a whole session of the legislature, with the defense of Barela as its highest purpose, how could it be possible to emphasize more positively the fact that it is dead and useless?

This very fight proves, indeed, the need for a straight, clean-cut division between Progressives and Republicans. Four of the eleven Republicans now in the senate were elected with Progressive indorsement. Two, Robinson and Weiland, have justified the faith reposed in them; they have stood, from first to last, for progressive measures; they have never proved servants of the bosses. The two others, Lines and Williams, have turned traitors, they have shown themselves more Republican than Progressive. Throughout the greater part of the session they have worked with the reactionaries and against the progressives.

The Republican party is just what it has been for years, the plaything of the bosses. The Barela case shows it in all its former odoriferousness. It has no constructive policy; its highest aim is to please big business. It is deader, more useless now, even, than it was at the last election, when it proved the third party. No progressive can longer find excuse for remaining within its fast-thinning ranks. And the Progressive party can offer a refuge for these Republican progressives only as it stands like a rock against all compromise, all fusion, and insists that henceforth all its candidates must stand squarely upon its platform or be recalled.

A NEEDED REFORM

WHEN you vote for the preferential system of voting you vote to save the city $1,500 each election, to do away with the needless worry and turmoil of two elections, and to prevent completely all bargaining and trading between candidates in the interval between the two elections. Moreover you make it certain that the majority can always, under any circumstances, elect its candidates, provided it takes the trouble to go to the polls and use the ballot.

NOT A CAUSE FOR PRIDE

AMERICAN journalism has been shown in anything but a flattering light in its handling of the Ohio flood news. If certain newspapers had deliberately tried to distort the news they could have done no worse than was done by many of the self-styled leading newspapers of the country.

But that whole newspaper staffs could be so woefully ignorant of the facts as events have proved they were is no more complimentary to the profession than the assumption that wilful misrepresentation was resorted to in the hope of selling papers.

No honorable newspaper man can look back over the past week without a feeling of shame that so many men of his calling should have resorted to the cheapest kind of sensationalism in one of the great calamities of the nation.

A BETTER PROPHECY

SAM BLYTHE, political expert of the Saturday Evening Post, pronounces the Republican party stone dead, a suicide. There is plenty of evidence to the effect that this time Sam is much nearer the truth than he was a year ago, when he predicted that in the Republican national convention Roosevelt wouldn't even have enough votes to make a respectable showing.

COMMANDS RESPECT NOW.

To the Editor of The Gazette:

In a speech before the Federation of Brotherhoods, Dr. Spencer, pastor of the First Baptist church, declared that "the church has lagged behind in its duties toward society and social relations, in that it offered no social program. The Socialists have done much in that direction," he said, and expressed pleasure because Socialism has changed from an antichurch institution to one which commands the respect of Christian people.

I am compelled to take issue with the reed doctor regarding Socialism ever having been an antichurch institution. Nothing will reveal the inaccuracy of this assumption better than a close study of Socialist literature from the time of Karl Marx (who was himself a devout Christian) down to the present time. Marx is authority on Socialism today, precisely as he was 40 years ago, and his writings are concurred in by the ablest scholars of our time. In support of my contention, allow me to quote Albion W. Small of the department of sociology in the University of Chicago, a recognized profound thinker.

"Marx was one of the few really great thinkers in the history of social science.

"I confidently predict that, in the ultimate judgment of history, Marx will have a place in social science analogous with that of Galileo in physical science.

"Accordingly he (Marx) was a constructive agent in the same sense in which the engineers were who bored into the floor of Hell Gate to prepare the way for the dynamite and the dredges.

"Marx's program was to deepen and widen and straighten the channel.

"In other words, nobody since Martin Luther has done as much as Karl Marx to make the conventional minded fear that our theories of life may need a thorough overhauling. The longer that overhauling is postponed the greater will be the repute of Marx after the crisis is past, and the more fatuous will the interests appear that are meanwhile repressing the inevitable.

"No, it has not been the fault of Socialism that the churches have not long ago adopted its social program, but because, as Dr. Spencer points out, 'the church has lagged behind.' We might call it 'social punk-mindedness,' as Professor Small says. 'It is a symptom of social punk-mindedness that all of our best-equipped thinkers are not as seriously intent as the Socialists are upon the unsolved problems of society.'

It is but natural that the church should be dominated by the propertied classes, who hold strong convictions that the church is under obligation to them because of the support they give it. In the light of this fact, why should it appear strange that the church is 'lagging behind in its duty toward society'?

Another aphoristic expression from Professor Small will help to elucidate this point. 'There is an irrepressible conflict in modern society between the presuppositions of capital and the paramount value of humanity.' On which side of this conflict, we can suppose are the minions of capital, 'lined up'?

FRANK D. WARREN.

Colorado Springs, March 30.

REST DAY ORDINANCE.

To the Editor of The Gazette:

I wish to thank you for the consideration you have given in your columns to the important principles involved in the proposed Day of Rest ordinance. It seems to me that Section 4 presents matter for careful thought. This section provides that if a person be required to work on Sunday, or a portion of Sunday, he, or she, shall have some other day or portion of day free from duty, in order to enjoy one full day of rest for each seven days.

Why may we inquire, should it be so carefully specified that workers have one day's rest in Seven? If this is a purely humanitarian provision, why not require that workers be given one day's rest in five, or in six days? Or why not confine labor laws to the matter of "hours per diem?"

Is it not easily possible to have an adjustment of hours of labor which will provide for every necessity of rest for the worker, without mentioning Sunday and the idea of 'one day's rest in seven?'

It has been argued that this proposed law is humanitarian, and of the same class as the eight-hour labor law. But why this one day in seven? Simply because this measure is designed, not primarily for the protection of labor, but for the protection of Sunday?

The whole idea of one day's rest in seven grew out of the ancient Sabbath institution. That is a religious institution. Any civil law for its protection is a religious law. This proposed Rest Day ordinance, providing for the 'protection' of a religious day, making exemption for certain classes of religionists, and being urgently indorsed by other classes of religionists, is religious all the way through. For the best good of all classes, it ought never to become a law. The first amendment to our federal constitution declares that 'Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof.' And this is the only safe principle we can follow in this matter.

A SOUND BODY.

From the Kansas City Star.

The most effective physical culture article that has been published in years will be found in the current issue of the Outlook. The author gives his experience in building up a sound physique. An asthmatic small boy, he was sent into Maine for his health. On the way he encountered two other boys of his own age who teased him. When he tried to defend himself he found that either one of them could handle him readily. On his return home he insisted that he take boxing lessons so he might make up in skill what he lacked in strength. That began a life of rigorous physical training.

By industry and perseverance he became a fair boxer and wrestler, a middling good shot and an average cross-country rider. That he used a high degree of perseverance may be inferred from the fact that in one of his early hunts he broke his left arm in a fall with his horse. But that did not deter him from being in at the death.

The name of this frail asthmatic boy who developed into a robust outdoor man is Theodore Roosevelt.

Improving On Reality

By RUTH CAMERON.

How much more attractive than the reality one can make anything sound by telling about it in a clever way!

And how often people do that!

A former neighbor of ours is now living in a distant city. Since her departure from our midst she has regaled us with letters so full of the beautiful home in which she lives, and the wonderful friends she has made that we have all been quite green with envy. I say 'have been' because that is all past. Recently another neighbor was visiting in the same city and since her return we have felt more satisfied with our humble lot.

Our former neighbor wrote us she was living in a beautiful, old-fashioned house with 12 rooms, three baths and a small conservatory. That was all true, but she quite forgot to mention that she only has part of the house, and that she pays for that part by caring for the old gentleman to whom the property belongs.

She conjured up visions of elegance by telling us that she lived on a certain street, which is almost world-famous as a center of wealth and aristocracy. Of course, she didn't explain that the street is very long and the part in which she lives is no more fashionable than our own neighborhood.

She wrote nonchalantly of attending a tea given by a famous authoress and chatted about the lady in question in a manner that made us think they were old friends. The truth of the matter was that the tea was a public affair given for charity, and she has never met the authoress before or since.

And so, with one light touch after another, without a single untruth, but with innumerable clever half-truths, she drew us a pretty half-tone picture at which we gazed fascinated, just as she meant we should.

Now that the traveler has turned the harsh light of full truth on the pretty picture, and sketched in some of the less attractive lines, we are inclined to laugh at our old neighbor, and yet, are you and I never guilty? Don't we ever draw half-tone pictures for our friends?

"Half the pleasure of my trip abroad came from thinking how I would describe my good times to my friends," said one of those rare people who try to be frank with themselves. "Even when I wasn't having such a very good time I'd think how delightful I could make it sound."

Few of us make such frank admissions even to ourselves, but if we did I fancy we should often have similar confessions to make.

BANKERS

By GEORGE FITCH,
Author of "At Good Old Siwash"

A banker is a financial shepherd who spends his life guarding flocks of $100 bills.

Bankers are usually confined behind cages in large, strong buildings, and must be approached respectfully and with caution. Out of business hours bankers are usually jovial and jolly, but when a banker enters his office he leaves his heart outside with his rubbers.

Bankers are greatly disliked for this reason by many people. Yet, when a banker carries his heart to work with him, he soon begins lending money to old friends in hard luck, and when the bank auditor puts on the shutters on it is found that the sole assets of the bank consists of a lot of promissory notes blotted with tears, and worth a dollar a bushel.

Bankers are cold and unsympathetic when you approach them to borrow $275 on a $5,000 farm in Canada and have great difficulty in recognizing personal friends when the latter need money. You may know a banker well enough to put your arm around his neck and call him Bill when you meet him at the club, but if you ask him for $1,000 for 30 days, he will ask you how to spell his name, and if you can get two well-known millionaires to sign your note for you.

"When you approached them to borrow $275 on a $5,600 farm in Canada."

Because of these facts borrowers detest banks, but depositors love them and bank receipts over the country are increasing faster than strong men with shovels can handle them.

Bankers are usually rich men and only work from 10 to 2 o'clock. This gives them 20 hours a day in which to worry. Few people realize the banker's facilities for worry. After he has finished with the ordinary worries, such as crops, health, business, weather and trusts, he has to go on and worry about discount rates, deposits, New York interest, political agitators, his cashier's automobile, the personal habits of his largest borrower and the state of the bond market.

For all these reasons we would not care to be a banker. We would prefer to be a principal depositor who is entitled to go into the banker's office at all hours with his hat over one ear and sass him with impunity.

WAR TIME TABLES

From Tit-Bits.

In these days, when we hear of mobilization from all quarters, it is interesting to note the continual preparedness of Germany in all matters pertaining to railway transit. She holds with the maxim that 'He who strikes first strikes twice.'

At all times, even when there is no talk of war in the air, there is locked up in every German stationmaster's desk a set of war-time tables—a separate time table for every country with which a war is possible, including France, Britain and Russia, while even Austria-Hungary is not exempt. Whenever war is declared, every stationmaster picks out the particular time table required and at once all the trains run automatically on 'war time,' and for war purposes. Each time table is revised once a year, in order to fit in with any alteration that may have been made in the plans of campaign. Each man liable to serve in the reserve is in possession, at all times, of a warrant for travel, and when war breaks out does not require to wait on instructions, but must report himself at once to his particular territorial depot, or at least by 10 o'clock in the morning following the declaration of war. Otherwise he is liable to a heavy penalty.

All carriages are marked with the number of soldiers they can carry, trucks with the size and weight of cannon that can be loaded on them, and the number of horses that can be taken on each vehicle.

Of course, all the railways belong to the state, and this simplifies matters; but in time of war everything gives way before the army.

WOMEN WHO HAVE PLAYED HAMLET

From the London Globe.

In view of the fact that the character of Hamlet is essentially northern, the number of tragedians of the Latin race who have essayed the impersonation of the Melancholy Dane is quite remarkable. Many of these have been women, and Mlle. Suzanne Desprez, a favorite both in London and in Paris, is the fourth French actress to attempt the role. Her predecessors in this interesting experiment are Judith, Sarah Bernhardt and Adeline Dudlay.

Preferential Voting

The adoption of the Charter amendment for the preferential system of voting would accomplish two important reforms:

First, it would do away with the second election, with its incidental expense and annoyance.

Second, it would secure the election of each member of the Council to a designated position. That is, the people would vote for the candidate to fill a specific office, and not merely as a member of the Council.

HOW DOLLS ARE MADE

From Leslie's Weekly.

The making of the composition dolls as seen in the German factories is an interesting process, even though some of the rooms are hot, steamy places where one does not care to stay long at a time. First there is the kneading room, where a big mixing trough is set up, and in this all sorts of rag-bag material are to be found—old gloves, rags, bits of cardboard, etc., and gum tragacanth. This mixture is kneaded by hand to the consistency of a paste, heated and carried into the moldroom. There it is dipped up by women and poured into patterns which are set up in rows. The molds are put away until they are cold enough to handle, when a workman, by a dexterous movement of his hands, separates the leaden sides, and then trims off the ragged seams and sends the heads to another room, where the holes for the eyes are cut out. This is an extremely delicate task, as all the sockets must be of uniform size. The work is done by hand, a long, sharp knife being used. The heads are next painted, waxed or glazed, depending upon the character of the material from which they are made. The arms, legs and hands are molded in the same manner as the heads, a special machine being used for stamping out the hands. These parts are painted in flesh color, while the heads must have rosy cheeks, red lips and dark or light eyebrows, as the color of the eyes used may not be quite. SAFEGUARDING A GREAT BRIDGE

From the San Francisco Chronicle.

Travelers from Roumania describe the extraordinary precautions which the authorities are taking to protect the great Danube railway bridge between Fetesi and Chernavoda. WHY

You Should Vote for W. R. Roby

FIRST:—He is one of the first residents of the town, and has been identified with all our progress from the beginning. Always he has been regarded as a good, loyal citizen, and espected as such by all his associates.

SECOND:—He has served two years in the Council, and so is not a novice in City affairs. Captain Roby was Chairman of the Sewer Committee his first year in the Council, and, under his management, the present system of sewerage was installed. The next year Mr. Roby was Chairman of the Water Committee, assisted by the Citizens' Committee, and, under their management, all our Water Rights of any importance were purchased. A little later Lake Moraines and Prospect were constructed, and the Ruxton Creek Pipe Line was built.

From this you can see that Mr. Roby is a man who is familiar with all our important utilities by actual experience. A man who fought to save us the utilities which a later Council GAVE away.

Mr. Roby is well known by all the principal business men in town, and can count on their support and advice at any time.

Let us vote for the man who has DONE something for the City—not just talked about what he would or could do.

Nearly 4,000 Attend Orchestra Concert at Stratton Park; Autoists Out

Attracted by the balmy spring weather and the first pleasant Sunday this year, thousands of people took advantage of the parks and drives yesterday, the scenes resembling those of summer. Between 3,000 and 4,000 attended the first Stratton park orchestra concert yesterday afternoon, enjoying the program arranged by Director W. J. Fink. Miss Winifred Faidley was the soloist of the program, her selection being "Hail, Hail the Queen." Scenes from "Naught Marietta," arranged by Herbert, was an orchestra feature. Hundreds of autoists enjoyed the good roads and ideal weather.

DR. J. H. SPENCER TALKS ON "CHRISTIAN ZEAL"

"Christian Zeal" was the topic chosen by Dr. J. H. Spencer for his sermon at the First Baptist church yesterday morning. He took his text from Jer. 20:9. "And if I say I will not make mention of him (God), nor speak any more in his name, then there is in my heart as it were a burning fire shut up in my bones, and I am weary with forbearing, and I cannot contain."

Dr. Spencer spoke in part as follows:

The prophet could not but give his message, though it was a thankless task, and brought him only ridicule and persecution. Like all the great prophets of the old testament, he was in dead earnest, on fire with his devotion to God and righteousness. The same was true of the new testament preachers. Persecution only fanned the flame of their zeal, and they counted not their lives dear for the gospel's sake. This blood earnestness was one of the causes of the incredibly swift spread and success of the new religion. And always Christianity's periods of greatest power have been when it was at white heat.

The elements of Christian earnestness are several. One of them is moral conviction, love of right. This is an irresistible force when focalized in an aroused public opinion. The enemies of society know this, and so work underground and out of sight as long as possible. When discovered and attacked, they count on the probable short life of a spasmodic awakening. Their game is always to wear out their opponents by various tactics of delay.

Also Has Religious Element.

Christian zeal also has a religious element. A real enthusiasm for humanity has its roots in the love of God. The prophets were aflame with devotion to God. Jesus Christ, in his own winsome personality, has brought God in his loveliness home to the hearts of all men. God is like Jesus. Who can help loving him? Judged by the number and kind of men and women who have been mastered by it, and by their achievements for humanity, this is the mightiest passion that has ever been arrayed against the forces of evil.

No other power is equal to the challenge of today. Evil is in earnest. The love of gain it is which is at the bottom of most of the iniquity of our times. Specious pretentions and sophistical misrepresentations should not blind us to the real motive, which is more dollars. Covetousness is idolatry. The worship of Mammon, and idolatry is a vice, one of the strongest and most ineradicable passions of the human heart. There is only one force strong enough to contend effectively and enduringly with it, and that is the love of God and righteousness.

A lukewarm Christianity is a contradiction in terms. The church that will accomplish must say, like Henry Martyn: "Now let me burn out for God." It is not enough for us to be evangelical. We must be evangelistic. Evangelical Christianity may be truth on ice. An evangelistic church means truth on fire, and will burn up all opposition.

The question of how taxes may be reduced will be discussed at Temple theater tonight by Judge McKesson.

The Highest Authorities

I had written for perhaps ten years warning American women against canned foods. I said, put them up at home or go without them. I beg them now to use canned foods. We are proud to have them on our table.

MARION HARLAND.

For seasons of natural shortage, for periods, places and times when fresh goods are not available, the canned goods fill a most important place in the modern dietary, and the wholesomeness, palatability and convenience of the products are in most instances unquestionable and under modern conditions of life they are filling a larger and larger need.

DR. HARVEY W. WILEY.

These canned goods were essential to the subsistence of the troops in the Philippines who were scattered through the islands and subjected to dissimilar conditions and surroundings. But the general good health of the army there, especially during cholera and plague epidemics, when canned goods were principally used, was primarily due to the variety and wholesomeness of the canned foods.

BRIG. GEN. HENRY G. SHARPE,
Commissary Department, U. S. A.

Canning is the art of preserving a food product in a hermetically sealed container, the preservation being accomplished through sterilization by means of heat. In its highest sense the object is to retain the food in as nearly a fresh condition as possible as to appearance, palatability and nutritive quality, or in the condition in which it is usually consumed. It affords the means of having wholesome, succulent vegetables or other products at all times and in places where otherwise the cost or the labor of preparation would be prohibitive.

DR. A. W. BITTING, Food Technologist, U. S. Bureau of Chemistry.

There can be little doubt in the mind of anyone who has visited a modern canning factory where fruits and vegetables are being prepared for the market, that the product is actually cleaner than when prepared in the ordinary home kitchen.

MRS. NELLE D. CHENOWETH,
Formerly of Household Science Dept., University of Illinois.

The discovery of canning by heat and development of the canning industry enables Nature to constantly empty her horn of plenty into the periods and places of destitution, and puts the June garden into the January pantry.

And Now, Madam, Comes National Canned Foods Week!

Millions of women in millions of homes will participate. Hundreds of thousands of retailers, grocers, jobbers and manufacturers in almost every city and town are making canned fruit, vegetables, fish, milk and meats their sales features from March 31st to April 5th.

A Week of Pure Food the Country Over

The crowds of women who use Canned Foods will buy their supplies this week. Thousands who've tired of canning their own foods will take advantage of it. This week is a climax of the great modern demand for pure food and economy. In Canned Foods today is the realization of this nation-wide demand. In Canned Foods Week is the proof of purity. And the proof that the cost of the best of these foods is within every housewife's reach.

What Dr. Wiley Says

Dr. Wiley, Marion Harland, and others are printing their ideas in the newspapers in regard to Canned Foods and their benefits—their cleanliness, purity, and food value. See what they say. Look for recipes by University Instructors in Domestic Science. See what the Food Technologist of the United States Bureau of Chemistry says about Canned Foods, of which five are sold in this country $80,000,000 worth yearly. Get these people's ideas on the goodness of Canned Foods, the flavor, the methods of preparation and their health-giving qualities. See, then, if you don't want to USE MORE CANNED FOODS THAN YOU EVER HAVE USED BEFORE.

These are the world's finest low-cost foods. Food can't be prepared any better today.

Cooked in the Containers at 250 Degrees

Foods sold in cans are picked or procured close to the canneries. Usually not more than four or five hours pass from the time these foods are taken from their natural surroundings until they are sealed in the cans, sterilized at 250 degrees and ready for the market. They retain all their flavor, their natural freshness, their purity and food value intact. You open them in your kitchen as good as the day the containers were filled at the canneries.

And most of these foods are canned by machinery kept immaculately clean. These canneries are like modern kitchens in the great hotels. Even the walls and ceilings are washed and thousands of gallons of hot water are daily used to scour and clean every part of the factory. They are spotless and white and inviting.

You will serve Canned Foods daily, as millions now do, when you fully realize these facts.

STRATTON TRUSTEES CONSERVED ESTATE, BUT PAID SELVES WELL

Attorney General's Report Says Administration Businesslike in the Main; Is "Ultraconservative"

The trustees of the Stratton estate are not given unqualified praise by Attorney General Fred Farrar in his report to the legislature, as would appear in the brief Associated Press dispatch from Denver, printed in The Gazette yesterday morning. Excerpts from the report, which reached this city yesterday, show that the attorney general characterizes the trustees as "ultraconservative." He says that as a business proposition the estate has been well managed, being worth not less than $7,300,000 now, or $1,000,000 more than when Mr. Stratton died. The attorney general also says, however, that they have paid heavy fees to themselves and to attorneys.

"They had made money," he says, and aside from heavy fees paid to themselves and to attorneys, the estate had been conservatively managed, and it became my duty to show them, if possible, that their trust was in the nature of a dual one, and that in addition to these matters they had a duty to perform for the people of Colorado."

Attorney General Farrar then goes on to show how, after several conferences, he succeeded, "possibly not in convincing these gentlemen that they should proceed, but rather in persuading them to proceed." This is in reference to the plans for doubling the capacity of the first buildings to be erected.

Farrar advises against any suit on the part of the state to compel the trustees to proceed more rapidly, first on account of the expense, and secondly because the outcome would be doubtful and might, instead of bringing about the fulfillment of the trust, simply be used as an excuse for further delay.

Extracts from the attorney general's report follow:

Farrar's Report.

As a business proposition this estate has been well managed. The total amount which has been paid out in administrators' fees, executors' fees, attorneys' fees, legacies, judgments, inheritance tax and other similar expenses, is approximately $2,000,000 but the estate today is probably worth not less than $7,300,000; in other words, $1,000,000 more than when Mr. Stratton left it. The income from these properties has been increased, altogether if measured by the returns which are expected from small properties, these incomes are not as large as they might be. The mining properties owned by the Stratton-Cripple Creek Mining and Development company has not paid reasonable dividends. The Brown Palace hotel was acquired under foreclosure proceedings, by the estate, and it has not paid well. There has been, in connection with this hotel, considerable litigation, one suit arising out of this transaction now being in the courts; others have been tried and settled. The properties belonging to the International Realty company have paid, on the whole, fairly well, and the street railroad company has paid fairly well, and it is out of the earnings of the estate, except for the properties sold which I have mentioned, that the disbursements have been made.

Estate Conserved by Trustees.

I beg to advise that all of the transactions of the estate seem to have been done by the gentlemen in charge with the desire to save and conserve the estate, and the payments which have been made, including the allowance of the fees to the administrators' fees to the executors, legal expenses and all other things pertaining to the transaction of the business of the estate, have been reported and duly approved by the court.

The foregoing gives you an idea of the condition of the estate as my inspection disclosed it. It was the obvious desire on the part of the general assembly of this state that such proceedings should be undertaken as could bring about the execution of the trust. In this work, I made a number of trips to Colorado Springs. I interviewed a great many people and made the investigation which is disclosed by the matters preceding. I arrived at the conclusion that the trustees, of the estate, two of whom had been connected with the estate from its inception, first as administrators to collect and then as executors and now as trustees of the home, had become, so far as the disposition of the assets of the estate was concerned, for the purpose of fulfilling the trust, ultraconservative. Possibly the injustice of many of the demands made upon the estate had tended to bring about this condition. Further, than that, they apparently are men inclined to a conservative viewpoint in any event, and they were fortified by orders of court approving all of the payments which they had made and all the transactions done by them.

It is obvious that they were not fearful of litigation. The estate had the means with which to defend litigation, and they had conclusively shown that while they might be slow in constructing the home, they were willing to spend money for attorneys. The state of Colorado, in my judgment, equal to afford litigation from two standpoints; first, the expense, and second, the further fact that litigation begun by the state at this time would be of uncertain outcome and might, instead of bringing about the fulfillment of the trust, simply be used as an excuse for further delay. I therefore arrived at the conclusion that if the fulfillment of the trust could be brought about by other means than litigation, it was highly desirable.

I found that the site for the home had been selected and a landscape plan outlined; that a reservoir had been built at a cost of approximately $45,000 and a pipe line for the domestic water at a cost of about $20,000. During the month of January, and after I began my investigation, the trustees let a contract for the first unit of the home. This contract calls for the construction of 10 cottages for the housing of old people, two dormitories for children and a cottage for the superintendent, with the necessary heating plants. These buildings are to be completed, according to the contract, by the first of November, 1913, the contract price, $147,000, of course, not including the cost of furnishing.

This was a start, but only a start in the fulfillment of the trust. These buildings would house a comparatively small number of people. It is hard to say definitely, but possibly 75 would be as many as could conveniently be taken care of.

Plan Is Ambitious.

However, it was the commencing of the plan and that plan is rather an ambitious one. It calls for a village with facilities for caring for and educating children, giving them vocational training, and for the care of old people, for the conduct of a dairy and a farm not only to supply food to the home, but also for the purpose of instruction in these lines of work; and the trustees contend that experience was necessary in order to build permanently, that they must know upon what lines they should expand, and that the plan called not for hasty, but for mature consideration in order that they might meet all contingencies which might arise. They argued particularly that it was difficult to plan very far in advance for children, but that the home would simply have to grow as its needs demanded and it was not intended, under the present condition of the estate, to add to this contract until such a time as their experience had taught that which might be needed; and in any event, this plan did not contemplate the erection of another unit for possibly two years.

"I therefore made it my object to induce those trustees to see the other side of the trust which they are appointed to fulfill. There was no question but that they were, from a business standpoint, conducting the estate well. They had made money, and, aside from heavy fees paid to themselves and to attorneys, the estate had been conservatively managed, and it became my duty to show to them, if possible, that their trust was in a nature a dual one, and that in addition to these matters they had a duty to perform to the people of Colorado. They argued upon the ground that an enlargement of the plan at this time would cost more money than they had in sight from the revenues, particularly in view of the fact that these buildings had to be equipped and furnished, and that further facilities for water were necessary. But after several conferences I succeeded, possibly not in convincing these gentlemen that they should proceed, but rather in persuading them to proceed.

To Double Capacity.

It is my intention to follow this matter carefully, and see that the second contract is entered into and performed. Its purpose is to double the capacity. I did not require that they should double the number of buildings, but double the capacity. The plans and specifications are to be prepared at once and contracts let without delay, and the understanding is that this contract shall be pushed to completion with all practicable speed, and its completion should follow in short time the completion of the first contract.

It is my judgment that this is the best result, taking everything into consideration, that could be brought about at this time. It has saved litigation, which would be expensive to the state; it has saved also the expense of such litigation to the Stratton home and thereby saved that much more for the people who will ultimately be the inmates of that home, and it has brought about the construction of a sufficient proportion of the home to justify the reasonable conclusion that the trust will be performed.

In addition to this I have the assurance of the trustees that in the event of the sale of certain of the properties belonging to the estate, which is now under negotiation, and which will, if sold, give them an abundant supply of ready cash, that they will proceed to the construction of the home without delay, in addition to those buildings which are now contemplated; in other words, that the home will be built to completion as far as that can be done at this time.

THE JUDGMENT HOUSE

By Gilbert Parker

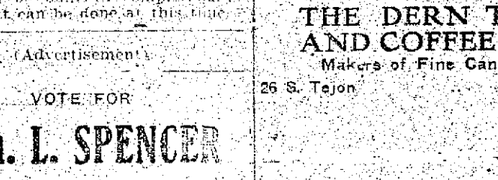

It is a story whose sympathies are as wide as the world. The destinies of nations are interwoven with the lives of the two heroes—one a millionaire, a pioneer of the Cecil Rhodes type, the other a diplomat, with his finger on the pulse of the world. And the woman, like Cleopatra, influences the careers of empire-builders by her beauty and her cleverness.

All those qualities of devouring interest which charmed a million men and women in "The Right of Way" and "The Weavers" are even more fully disclosed in this new work of the Master's hand.

CHARLES E. THOMAS

CANDIDATE FOR

MAYOR

Pledged only to enforce the will of the people and protect the interests of the city

REV. GEORGE BEHNER IS SPEAKER AT Y. M. C. A.

"Christianity," a Religious Experience," was the subject of an address by the Rev. George Behner, pastor of the Free Methodist church, at the men's meeting in the Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon. He said in part:

It is one thing to become converted and another to repent according to your convictions. Conversion means a change of mind, while the repentance of sins leads to an entirely different viewpoint of life.

Be baptized in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sin and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost. The church should be humble before God in such a manner that the power of the Holy Ghost may work in and through it to the end of bringing men to repentance. There is as much bringing men into the church without bringing them to repentance. This only whitewashes them and turbs them loose, making it harder to reach them again. It should be the aim of the church not only to add men only to the church, but to the Lord.

Why should men be cowards in the face of duty to their fellowmen and show such little faith in God when he promises them so much?

At Temple theater tonight Judge McKesson will show why the Jackson franchise is one of the most vital issues of this campaign, and what may be done by the light company in the next four years to force an extension of that franchise.

To Hold Convention in Chamber of Commerce

NAME APPEARS LAST ON BALLOT

What the Press Agents Say

JOHN DREW TONIGHT

An allied social and dramatic event is assured in Charles Frehman's presentation of John Drew in "The Perplexed Husband" by Alfred Sutro, at the Grand Opera house tonight. This four act comedy, which was the success of the London season when it was given there this year, repeated its triumph at the Empire theater, New York, this season when Mr. Drew played there to delighted audiences.

The story has to do with a London tea merchant with all the usual characteristics of his class, who returns home after a long trip to find that his wife has been converted to the cause of woman suffrage. Two fanatics on the subject are making a prolonged visit and have persuaded her to fall in with their line of thinking. The first thing she must realize is that she has been a parasite, and a petted plaything altogether too long and must branch out and "live her own life." She must show that she has a mind of her own and let her husband see that she no longer occupies the position of a human doll.

When the husband is brought up sharp against this new tide of affairs in his home he knows not what to do. First he threatens to kick out the two modern thinkers, a shrew and a lazy philosopher, but the wife retorts that if they go she goes with them.

At this point the husband's sister comes to the rescue. She is a practical creature and sees that she must fight the situation with the same weapons that are being used by his opponents. Why not introduce into the home circle a beautiful girl who has been in his employ, and pretending that he has been won over to their way of thinking, go a step further and say that she needs converting also?

The plan meets with his approval and as a prelude to introducing the lovely intruder, would it not be a good idea to read all the books and papers by the "new thought sages"? In a remarkably short time the husband seems as modern as either of the two fanatics, who welcome him gladly into the fold. Then he brings into the home circle the beautiful girl with a Greek soul, caring for naught except the beautiful and harmonious, and wearing gowns that are soon the envy of the other two women.

The situations and complications that ensue are of a diverting nature.

SPECIAL FILM AT EMPRESS

The new motion picture of "Cleopatra" has been secured for the Empress theater. It requires one hour and 40 minutes to project this superb motion picture. The Mirror says it is probably the most stupendous and beautiful picture ever produced. The 6,000 feet of reel is divided into five parts and makes seven reels. The picture is greeted with the greatest appreciation ever accorded a cinematographic product, wherever and whenever shown. It is an epoch maker in the art of motion pictures, full of tense and highly dramatic situations. It is full of pictorial loveliness, the rythmic beauty and dynamic personality of Miss Gardner permeates the picture from its stirring start to its tragic end. Her support is good, and the scenic effects are wholly in character, the costuming as accurate and beautiful as cultured taste and money could evolve. The story, while one of deep intrigue, is nevertheless told so clearly and well that it is like not only seeing but hearing a great stage performance.

[WH]ITE SOX AND PHILADELPHIA NATIONALS [ARE] DARK HORSES IN PENNANT RACES IN 1913

[Ch]icago Baseball Expert Says Either Team May Finish Up With the Leaders

(By HUGH S. FULLERTON.)

[C]HICAGO, March 30.—Here comes [the] two dark horses of the major [lea]gues, turning into the dope stretch [and] threatening to kick all the form [out] of the race. They are the Chicago [Whi]te Sox and the Philadelphia Nationals.

[The]se two teams are the hardest in [the c]ountry to calculate upon. The [Whi]te Sox have Ed Walsh and a huge assortment of assistants, but [Wal]sh puts them into the running for [firs]t division honors even without help, [pro]vided they do not hinder him.

You can figure the Phillies any [pla]ce from sixth to second, according [to] whether you think that each man [will] do the best he is capable of doing or whether you think he will do, [as] in the past, nearly his worst.

[On]e thing is certain, and that is last [yea]r's form of the Phillies was not [true]. The team was off, unluckily, [suf]fered from serious injuries to players right at the start, followed by [tou]gh luck, lack of condition, more [in]juries, and finally by interference [and] meddling by Fogel, which completed the wreck of the club. After [the] men became discouraged and disgusted, they misbehaved shamefully [an]d finished in joke condition for athletes.

If you are looking for dark horses [pl]ay the Phillies in the National, up [a]s high as third, for if they go at [th]eir best they are a better club than [eit]her Chicago or Cincinnati, and close to New York, even deducting for their bad two years.

The White Sox are too uncertain to wager on. Indeed, the White Sox are a strange baseball club. Jones won a world's championship with a club much weaker than Callahan now has, but the opposing teams were not as strong.

Remember, too, in trying to place the probable finishing place of the Sox, that the league as a whole is going to be a tough one to go through this season, and that the weak clubs are almost as likely to beat the strong ones as to beat the other weak ones. Give any of the weak clubs strong pitching and the world's champions look the same to them as club teams do.

What makes the Sox so hard to figure is this: They have grand fielders who can hit, great pitchers who can field, and two fellows who can hit like fiends as long as the pitching is bad and can't hit at all after about July 4. In short, Callahan has a club composed of material good enough to [win a] pennant if he could use it all at once, which he cannot.

There is no doubt it is a team rapidly building up. Comiskey is at present overloaded with mediocre material, which only delays the development of the good men. He picked up several corking good men last year and this, and after the period of depression seems again building a pennant-winning club—not this season, but he seems to be next in line when Boston and the Athletics wear out.

Summed up, Callahan has much more promising material than he had last spring, even if Miller, the most promising of the pitching recruits has not been in shape to show anything. It is a team likely to flash out in front some time, yet without strength enough to stay there. It will hit weak pitching hard, then slump because three of the men who hit the weak pitching can't hit good hurling. This will necessitate Callahan carrying a bunch of understudies and nursing the team carefully.

Figuring on the Phillies is odd business. Figured on the basis of each man doing what he is capable of doing, the team ranks second in the National. They figured first last year by a few points over both Giants and Pirates, yet I was compelled to cut them way down because of known conditions—said known conditions being chiefly Fogel.

This season the team, figured individually, is still points ahead of New York, but Pittsburg has passed it. Again I am compelled to shave off because of conditions—even with Fogel gone. I am certain that the coming of Billy Locke to the head of the club will improve it over what it was last season.

Further, last season was not one on which to judge the team. It had tough luck right at the start. Then, instead of coming back, it quit.

I do not believe any team in modern baseball went through such a "joy season." Some thought Dooin had lost control of the men. In fact, he didn't try to control them after Fogel began his tricks and interference. On top of that, Fogel's attacks upon umpires caused them to turn on the team, consciously or unconsciously, and it hurt.

Baseball Yesterday

[A]ST. LOUIS, March 30.—The local American league team won the opening game of the series with the local National league club for the championship of St. Louis here this afternoon, 4 to 3.

BALTIMORE, March 30.—The Philadelphia Nationals shut out the Baltimore Internationals at Back River today, 6 to 0.

KANSAS CITY, March 30.—The Kansas City American association [ass]ociation team today defeated the [Th]ree-Western league players, 7 to 3.

[LO]S ANGELES, March 30.—The Chicago American regulars defeated the [Pacifi]c Coast leaguers this morning, [and] the Los Angeles team this afternoon as a windup to their spring training season in California. They [le]ft tonight on the homeward journey, during which they will make a half dozen or more stops to play exhibition games. The first will be at Yuma, Ariz., tomorrow. The next will be at El Paso, Tex., and the other games will be played at Amarillo, Tex., Oklahoma City and St. Joseph, Mo. Scores: Chicago, 8; Venice, 4; Chicago, 8; Los Angeles, 3.

[SA]N FRANCISCO, March 30.—The [Chic]ago Americans No. 2 won two [game]s today. Their morning game at [Oakl]and with the Oakland Coast [lea]guers resulted 13 to 4, and on this [sid]e of the bay this afternoon, San [Fran]cisco was beaten 4 to 1.

Tris Speaker, slamming the pellet into safe territory. Speaker, the famous center fielder of the Boston Red Sox, has a unique record in baseball, that of having [illegible] out more two-bagers than any man in either league. The Boston speed boy [has] 52 [illegible] half circuit wallops to his credit.

MILLIONAIRES TO RESTORE RACING

CHAMP TOOK TIPS FROM OLD-TIMERS

Coulon, Bantam Titleholder, Received Points From Siler and Ryan

CHICAGO, March 30.—Lilliputian King Coulon has a style that is a combination of the biggest assets of fighters of years ago.

For example, his jab was the pet punch of George Siler, the veteran referee, now dead. His left hook came down to him from Tommy Ryan. Various other points were the teachings of the old-timers, and one can rightly say that the Logan square real estate gambler is the handiwork of the best choppers of decades ago. Coulon is the only boxer of yesterday who wears a modern title.

"The old fellows who battled on the mud scows when Lincoln favored emancipation were the fighters, in my opinion," declared Coulon recently. "Most of the good stuff used in the arena nowadays caromed from them. They had the heads and they had the physical backing."

Always having made it a point to reach friendly terms with the G. A. R. regiment of excharpshooters, who can tell you how fights used to be fought, Coulon has built a repertory of standbys in the ranks of a barnstorming company where they give plays instead of blows.

When Johnny was a smaller kid even than he is now, he dubbed around with the knuckle-featured veterans. His nature naturally enlisted their sympathies, and they poured forth their tales of ring science into his eager ears without stint.

Referee Siler, who, when he was 60 and Coulon 15, jabbed Johnny fifty successive times on the nose with his artistic left—imagine what a performance that must have been in view of midget Johnny's speed—taught the Chicagoan his early lessons. Coulon credits Siler with being a marvel of a teacher, too, supplementing his claim with a recital of the good George did for Gans.

CASTOFFS WOULD BE STRONG AGGREGATION

Some Stars Once Discarded Include Archer, Cheney, and Al Bridwell

CHICAGO, March 30.—If some big league magnate could gather together the material let go by managers on the supposition it was below standard or some other like cause, what a marvelous team he would have. Just glance over the appended matter as a starter:

Catcher Archer, whom Hugh Jennings of the Tigers couldn't see.

Catcher Thomas, another backstop Jennings thought wasn't quite heavy enough for him.

Pitcher Bob Perdue, the star Boston flinger; Frank Chance didn't want around the Cub bench.

Pitcher Larry Cheney, now a great Cub performer, who didn't look good to ex-Manager Fielder Jones of the White Sox.

Pitcher Lew Ritchie of the Cubs, the Giant tamer, who the Phils thought was down and out.

First Baseman Chick Gandil, one of the men who put the Senators on top this past season, who ex-Manager Hugh Duffy of the White Sox thought was a joke.

Second Baseman Rath of the White Sox, a player neither the Naps nor Connie Mack of the Athletics could discern through a telescope.

Shortstop Bridwell of the Cubs, turned loose by the Giants to give Fletcher and others a chance (laughter).

Third Baseman Foster of the Senators, one of 1912's sensations, who Connie Mack thought was too light for the job.

FRANKLIN

A light-weight, high-grade car is a positive necessity to thousands of owners.

The high cost of gasoline makes fuel economy absolutely essential. Franklin cars weigh from 1,000 to 1,500 pounds less than other cars of the same size. The Franklin world's record for economy is 46.1 miles per gallon of gasoline.

Let us show you the Entz starter equipment used on the Franklin. It does not add a single control and it keeps the engine from stalling.

Special Jury Will Decide Thorpe Case

GENEVA, Switzerland, March 30.—The case of James Thorpe, the Carlisle Indian athlete, who confessed to professionalism after winning prizes at the Olympic games, will be considered by a special international jury at the Olympic congress to be held in May at Lausanne. It is understood that the Amateur Athletic association will make a supplementary statement, and that Thorpe's prizes will be handed over to the Swedish delegates. The proceedings will be private.

The facts in regard to the city's bonds, and what must be done to protect the taxpayers, will be fully discussed tonight at Temple theater by one who fully understands the situation.

Howard Camnitz, the star member of the Pirates' hurling staff, has thrown his arm out, as the expression goes, but Clarke is making him rest, and says he will be all right by opening day.

The Cincinnati scribes say that the Reds are working heart and hand with their new leader, Joe Tinker. With a man as true blue as Joe in charge, there is no reason why they shouldn't

OLD PLAYERS' RANKS ARE FAST DEPLETING

Pirate Chief Is Weeding Out Veterans; Wagner Is the Only One to Remain

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 30.—The composite "Pirate" of 1913 is a younger man than any representation of the city of Pittsburg on the baseball diamond in ten years. The old fellows are gradually dropping out and young blood is replacing them, not in accordance with any fixed policy of the club, but because many of the stars of past years have outlived their usefulness. Old players are never dropped from the roster merely because they are old. The combination of Clarke-Wagner-Leach-Richey that was looked upon as one of the most formidable in organized baseball was first broken up when Claude Ritchey was let out. Clarke was next to go, through self-elimination, and last summer a third member of the quartet in the person of Tommy Leach was dropped. Today only Hans Wagner remains.

It is a case of the survival of the fittest. The big Dutchman is 39 years old. Perhaps it could be put "39 years young," for it is only the lines on his face and the whitening of his hair at the temples which indicate his age.

Hans Wagner will be robbing opposing players of base hits and knocking down fences with his own drives this summer as of yore. He will be running wild on the paths. He will continue to be a terror to pitchers, the idol of every American youth and one of the most talked about and written about men in the United States. His career of usefulness has outlasted that of every contemporaneous baseball star, and he is still going.

What must be done to minimize vice conditions in the city will be one of the topics discussed at Temple theater tonight by Judge McKesson.

RACING JINX HAS NOT UNNERVED DE PALMA; NOTED PILOT WILL DRIVE AT INDIANAPOLIS

Champion Who Escaped Death by an Inch Has Had Thrilling Career Behind Wheel

By HARRY T. WOODRUFF.

CHICAGO, March 30.—Ralph De Palma, the Italian motor speed merchant, has picked out training quarters for himself and his crew at the Indianapolis speedway. In the absence of his formal entry this presages his participation in the big race on Memorial day, and a renewed battle against the jinx which has pursued him so persistently in big races and which he only partly subdued last season.

When De Palma ran into Caleb Bragg in an effort to take the lead on the last lap of the Grand Prize in Milwaukee last October he suffered injuries which made his recovery doubtful. When he survived the ordeal it was thought the experience would cure him of all desire to race again. But De Palma is ready and anxious to try again against the best pilots of America or Europe.

Sustaining accident, mechanical or tire troubles 15 times within five years in big events, De Palma met his crowning misfortune financially and gained his most notable victories last season.

It was in the international sweepstakes of 500 miles at Indianapolis that a broken oil pump robbed him of victory and the $27,000 which went to the winner. For 497 of the 500 miles De Palma set a pace of over 80 miles an hour, which left his competitors in the rear. Then with only one more lap to go his big Mercedes balked and he saw Joe Dawson come from 15 miles in his wake and reel off the few remaining circuits of the brick oval for first place.

De Palma then went to France to compete in the Grand Prix. On the first day he was in third and fourth place, only to be disqualified for taking fuel outside the pit.

Then came a turn in De Palma's fortune for he returned and won both the Elgin national trophy and free-for-all events at Elgin. He followed up the success by capturing the oft-postponed Vanderbilt cup affair at Milwaukee, and his triumphs were not begrudged by rivals who had admired his pluck and perseverance under reverses.

Two days after the Vanderbilt, De Palma met his accident in the Grand Prize when with only one more lap to go he was assured of second place if he had not attempted to press his speed and overtake Bragg.

De Palma, who was 29 years old in December, was born in Troia, Italy, not far from Naples. He possessed the speed mania in infancy. He drove the pusher of his baby carriage to desperation by his infantile wails of "Let her out—let her out," and before he was 2 years old held the perambulator record of one mile in 10:44 1-5, fully three minutes better than the best previous mark.

When Ralph was 7 years old his family emigrated to America, which gave him added opportunities. While attending grammar school it is related that he fashioned a box on wheels which was propelled by his own foot, not dissimilar to those seen in any well regulated Boyville. It was 1 B. P.—i. e., one-boy power.

It was natural, therefore, for De Palma to take up bicycle riding, and, when he became proficient as an amateur, to enter the professional field in preference to attending school. Ralph was noted for his endurance and was more successful in the longer races than in the sprints. He met such riders as Floyd, Krebs, Nat Butler and Johnny Johnson.

But the bicycle was not fast enough for Ralph, so he became a motorcycle rider. With the advent of that useful means of locomotion he followed this vocation for several years and then jumped into the big game.

Firmly established as one of the world's leading drivers and notably successful in match races and trials against the clock, De Palma ran through a disheartening series of mishaps in the big events of 1911 and 1912 until his double victory at Elgin.

At the end of the season De Palma was declared the champion road racing driver of 1912, winning four of five starts, the best record made in such contests in the last four years.

Anyway, half the excitement of a yacht race is in the discussion of the conditions of the challenge and the size of the boat.

Clyde Milan of the Nationals is one of the few athletes who go north instead of south to train. He lives in southern Tennessee and Griffith's men train in the northern part of Virginia.

A dentist accompanied the Giants to Marlin Springs this year and last season a jinx accompanied those Phillies to Weeping Pines.

The man who learns to get along with only four hours' sleep a day is not to be envied and admired nearly so much as the one who can make reliable arrangements to get nine.

Owing to the high cost of holding out, all the ball players, with two exceptions, have signed up for another period of hard labor.

"Noise," says a Harvard professor, "is barbarous, and steps must be taken to prevent it." Regards to the H. P. Rocky conference, please write.

Thirteen Is Lucky Date for Star Ball Players

Lucky would be the magnate who could secure for his team those players who happen to have been born on the alleged lucky date of the thirteenth. Said magnate probably would be making preparations to enlarge the seating capacity of his park by the middle of the season, for from the players whose birthdays fall on the hoodoo date, a world's championship combination almost could be picked.

The manager of this Thirteen club would be J. Garland Stahl of the Red Sox. He was born April 13, 1880. Presuming that Stahl might prefer to remain where he now is, a person named Fielder Jones, who was born August 13, 1874, might be induced to take charge.

For scouts, Billy Murray of the Pirates, who was born April 13, 1864, and Gene McCann, formerly with the Highlanders, who was born June 13, 1876, would be available.

Archer and Simon "Belong."

The catchers for the Thirteen club would be Jimmy Archer of the Cubs and Mike Simon of the Pirates. These two athletes reached this sphere May 13, 1883, and April 13, 1883, respectively. Johnny Kling, who says he will not pastime this year, was born November 13, 1885.

Only one real high-grade major league pitcher was born on the thirteenth. He is Vean Gregg of the Naps, who will celebrate his twentieth-eighth birthday next month. Bill Donovan, who pitched the Tigers to two pennants, and "Rube" Waddell, who was responsible for the winning of a pair of flags by the Athletics, were both born on the thirteenth. "Wild Bill" will be [illegible] years old next October, and so will "Rube."

Noted infielders who celebrated their natal days on the thirteenth, besides Jake Stahl, are Hal Chase of the Highlanders, Ed Konetchy of the Cardinals, Larry Gardner of the Red Sox, Eddie Foster of the Nationals and J. Franklin Baker of the Athletics, who gave Tris Speaker a close race for the Chalmers American league trophy car last season.

Few Outfielders Are Eligible.

Outfielders born on the thirteenth are not numerous. Josh Devore of the Giants was born November 13, 1887, and Maggart, formerly with the Athletics, was born February 13, 1888. "Buck" Freeman, who holds the major league record for the greatest number of homeruns in a season, first saw the light of day October 13, 1871.

Mal Eason, National league umpire, is one of the 13 chaps, he having reached this earth March 13, 1879. Here is the Thirteen club:

Manager and center fielder—Jake Stahl, Red Sox, born April 13, 1880.

Pitcher—Vean Gregg, Naps, born April 13, 1885.

Catcher—Jimmy Archer, Cubs, born May 13, 1883.

First baseman—Hal Chase, Highlanders, born February 13, 1883.

Second baseman—Larry Gardner, Red Sox, born May 13, 1886.

Third baseman—J. Franklin Baker, Athletics, born March 13, 1886.

Shortstop—Eddie Foster, Senators, born February 13, 1888.

Left fielder—Konetchy, Cardinals, born September 13, 1885.

Right fielder—Josh Devore, Giants, born November 13, 1887.

Scout—Bill Murray, Pirates, born April 13, 1864.

Umpire—Mal Eason, National league, born March 13, 1879.

FROM TOP TO BOTTOM: DUCHESS DE TALLEYRAND, MISS ANNE MORGAN, COUNT DE CASTELLANE.

Society in Paris is barking ... mer linking the name of Miss Anne Morgan, daughter of the great financier, J. Pierpont Morgan, to that of Count Boni de Castellane, whose marriage to the Duchess de Talleyrand, formerly Miss Anna Gould, was recently annulled by the church of Rome. It is known that the count de Castellane made several visits on Miss Morgan when the latter was at the Italian capital, but Boni denies that these visits related in any way to the financier's philanthropic daughter.

Judge McKesson will tell the people at Temple theater tonight why the streets of the city have not been better cared for and improved.

How to Avoid Those Pains and Distress Which so Many Mothers Have Suffered.

It is a fact more women do not know of Mother's Friend. Here is a remedy that softens the muscles, enables them to expand without any strain upon the ligaments and enables women to go through maternity without pain, nausea, morning sickness or any of the dreaded symptoms so familiar to many mothers.

There is no foolish diet to harass the mind. The thought, do not dwell upon pain and suffering, for all such are avoided. Thousands of women no longer resign themselves to the thought that sickness and distress are natural. They know better, for in Mother's Friend they have found a wonderful, penetrating remedy to banish all those dreaded experiences.

It is a subject every woman should be familiar with, and even though she may not require such a remedy, she will now and then meet some prospective mother to whom a word in time about Mother's Friend will come as a welcome blessing. This famous remedy is sold by all druggists, and is only $1.00 a bottle. It is for external use only, and is really worth its weight in gold. FEARFO SPRINGS BRIDE WAS SERIOUSLY INJURED

Man Rushes Hatless and Collarless to Get License From Denver Clerk.

Fearing that his bride to-be, Miss Bertha V. Robinson of Colorado Springs was about to be operated on and that she would not survive the ordeal, Cato W. Holden of Denver, caused a hurry-up wedding in that city Saturday, according to reports. Holden rushed to the marriage license clerk, hatless and collarless and asked for the license, stating that his fiance had fallen and was injured, and was being rushed to St. Luke's hospital for an operation. A canvass of Denver hospitals showed that Miss Robinson to Mrs. Holden as her name may be, was not operated on.

V. Z. Reed and Midwest Oil Co. Contribute to the Denver Benefit Fund

Verner Z. Reed of this city and Denver, and the Midwest Oil company, in which Mr. Reed and Springs men are heavily interested, each paid the top price for a box at the Flood benefit performed at the Broadway theater in Denver last night, giving $500 for each box. The boxes and a number of parquet seats were sold at auction, and $2,570 was realized from the auction sale alone, in addition to the general sale of tickets, which brought the total to about $4,000. Colorado Springs has raised nearly $4,000 toward the relief fund, and the total raised in Colorado is about $29,000.

The drill team will also appear in public at a grand ball in Marble hall Wednesday evening.

The Colorado Springs drill team will be sent to Oklahoma City during the national conclave to compete in the drill team contest, and members of the lodge in Colorado expect that it will bring the pennant back to this city.
